Shock for Britain. Also for U. S. Bankers. Mexico Is in. Good Luck. Who Made the U. S. A?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

BRITAIN YESTERDAY was startled as much as the British can be startled by MacDonald's proposal of a dictatorship. He demands that the cabinet be allowed to govern by the king's orders in council without sanction of Parliament.

The king's orders would be written by MacDonald with the approval of his coalition government and three men, MacDonald at the head of the triumvirate would rule England arbitrarily.

That will surprise British labor particularly and will not please it. Fortunately those that hold the power will use it worthily.

MORE CHEERFUL news from Germany. The Reichsbank's gold supply is now sufficient to give "required coverage" for Reichsmark issues. The resumption of practically unrestricted speculation on the Berlin Bourse today will show the state of the public mind.

With the assistance of American finance, Germany will probably come through the winter much better than she hoped to do.

AMERICAN FINANCIERS that have consented to "freeze" short time credits in Germany will learn with interest that Germany is now able to finance for her industrialists $37,000,000 worth of business in Russia. That is the same Russia that refuses to pay our bankers their dues.

REGARDLESS OF financial and other troubles, Germany continues to get things done. Yesterday mail was delivered early from an airplane flying in 1,275 miles from the German steamship Europa, which holds the North Atlantic record.

The airplane catapulted from the Europa's deck, was driven by a German pilot, Blankenberg, who arrived 30 hours ahead of the ship. That means mail from Europe in a little more than three days, which is progress while awaiting the time, not far away, when mail will come in three hours.

MEXICO IS IN the League of Nations. Good luck to her. The membership satisfies her pride, Mexico having been deliberately left out of the League in the original arrangement.

League membership won't hurt Mexico. If she is asked for money she will say "I haven't got it" and if asked to send men she will say:

"I don't do that. My people fight only at home."

THIS NATION, that sends money in billions and men by the millions, is the one that should keep out of the League and other complications.

We have enough to think about here with our crime wave and our prohibition, and our financiers pumping money out of the country into foolish foreign loans, some of them frozen, and some worse—dead.

ANDREAS THALER, who began life as a peasant in the Austrian Tyrol and became Austrian minister of agriculture, advises the hardy men of the Tyrol to take their families to find opportunity and prosperity in South America, especially Chile and Argentina.

The advice is sound. The pity is that such men are no longer allowed to come here, to build up this country, consume its surplus, develop its strength and prosperity, as they and men like them have done for 100 years past.

One of the worst ideas this country ever had was keeping out the right kind of emigration, to which the country owes everything that it possesses. That foolishness was supposed "to keep all our people working." We need more people to consume our surplus.

ANTAGONISM TO the Catholic church in Mexico and laws forbidding more than an absolutely inadequate number of priests, continue to spread. Limiting of priests began in the state of Vera Cruz, which passed a law allowing for 1,000,000 inhabitants only a maximum of 15 priests, including bishops.

Now Yucatan passes a similar law forbidding more than nine priests to operate throughout the entire territory, while Chiapas has a law permitting only 14 priests.

Outrages continue, including the decapitation and burning of a religious statue. The outbreak of hostility to religion is as sudden and violent as it is mysterious.

PROFESSIONAL KILLERS in our crime wave, and high chiefs of the bootleg industry become gradually bolder.

Charles B. Cavanaugh, police chief of Bernardsville, N. J., made himself objectionable, raided speakeasies, interfered with bootleg profits. That could not be endured.

The right person, with the right gun, was sent to shoot him dead as he stepped out on his veranda.

If today they shoot a chief of police, later they may work up higher through official ranks, to Mayors, Governors and so forth.

TAX RECEIPT CHECK-UP REVEALS FRAUDS

Board Fears 'Repeaters' Swamped Registration; Prosecutions Indicated

M. Ciberey, of 18 Bates street, dead for 18 years, "signed" an order for a tax receipt this fall, investigators discovered today as they unearthed evidence of forgeries among the "wholesale" lots of tax orders presented by prominent politicians and now on file in the Delinquent Tax Collector's office.

The forgeries were discovered as the Registration Commission laid ground work for court action expected to result in thousands of fraudulently registered or assessed names being stricken from the voting lists.

200 NAMES CHECKED

A check of the first 200 names in the 833 delinquent tax receipts obtained by Howard Neely, Fourth Ward Republican chairman and adherent of State Senator James J. Coyne's candidacy for commissioner, revealed eight names in addition to Ciberey's in which the flaws were found. They were those of JOHN BOBYAK, also at 18 Bates street, who, Mrs. Cibery said, went to Europe four months ago planning to remain at least a year.

MRS. E. CIBEREY and MRS. ANDREW BEITCH, widow and daughter of the dead man, who said they had not signed authorization for payment of the 50-cent poll tax for which they are listed in the delinquent tax office be-

MRS. RUTH FALK WEIGLE

FALK'S WIDOW WEDS TEACHER

Mrs. Ruth Juliette Falk, 36-year-old widow of Leon Falk, Pittsburgh millionaire philanthropist, and daughter of the late Rabbi Joseph Leonard Levy, was married early today, in New York, to Jean Jacques Weigle, six years her junior, a professor and a native of Switzerland. They obtained a marriage license at the Municipal Building yesterday.

The ceremony was performed at 40 West Sixty-eighth street, by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, old friend of Mrs. Falk's father, who is said to have married Mr. and Mrs. Leon Falk eight years ago and buried Leon Falk in 1928. There were no attendants.

Mrs. Falk met the young professor during a trip abroad in the spring of 1930, her friends say. Mr. Weigle is said to have recognized Mrs. Falk on a train in Switzerland, from a description of her given him by mutual friends in Pittsburgh.

The news of Mrs. Falk's marriage came as a complete surprise

Police said they confiscated a small quantity of moonshine liquor.

Pauline Moore, 27, Negro, of the same address, was also arrested.

Attaches at Independent Republican headquarters said Mrs. Steinour had left headquarters a few minutes previously to canvass her district.

YACHTSMAN'S WIFE TELLS OF PIRACY

Says Gunmen Cast Husband Adrift; Child Found Alone On Boat; Drowning Hinted

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Benjamin P. Collins, 38, wealthy yachtsman, was reported missing to local and Nassau County (N. Y.) police after the discovery early today of his daughter, Barbara, 5, alone on his cruiser Penguin which was drifting in Long Island Sound.

The cruiser was found in the sound about a mile off Lloyd's Point, L. I., without lights, at 2:30 a. m.

Mrs. Collins, wife of the yachtsman, was found later aboard an uninhabited yacht in Oyster Bay, Long Island, where she claimed she had been left by two gunmen, who tied her husband hand and foot and set him adrift in a small skiff after abandoning her on the yacht.

TOOK YACHT AND CHILD

The gunmen then left with the Penguin and their daughter, Barbara, she told police.

The child was discovered by a party of New Rochelle yachtsmen on a fishing trip.

The mother was taken into Oyster Bay from the yacht several hours later when her screams attracted the attention of a Capt. Howard.

The attention of the New Rochelle men was attracted to the Penguin because it was floating aimlessly with the tide and was without running lights. At the same time, they heard a thrashing noise in the water about 100 yards away, as though a swimmer was exhausted. Two of them set out in a skiff to aid the swimmer, but before they could reach the spot the noise ceased.

FEAR SWIMMER DEAD

They could find no trace of a swimmer, but both are positive there was one and that the swimmer drowned.

Mrs. Collins is said to have told Long Island authorities that after cruising about the sound in the Penguin during the day, her husband anchored off Price's Bluff, Northport. After supper the child was put to bed and she and her husband talked.

About midnight she went to her bunk and a few minutes later heard voices on the deck.

She returned to the deck where she said a man about 50 and a boy of 18 were talking with her husband. They asked him to take them to Norwalk at once as they had an injured friend, whom they

POOR BOARD'S QUIZ REVIVED

Three visitors appointed by Judge James H. Gray to investigate expenditures of the Directors of Poor, today announced they would not be stopped by the Poor Directors' appeal to the Superior Court, unless checked by a supersedeas.

E. H. Wicks and G. M. McDonald, who with Paul E. Hutchinson, were named visitors last week, today issued this statement after they had learned that Harry W. McIntosh, acting for the Poor Directors, had filed an appeal to the Superior Court.

It is expected that the appeal will be heard by the Superior Court next April.

Today, an attorney was said to be in Hollidaysburg attempting to have Judge Thomas J. Baldridge grant a supersedeas, which would prevent the visitation committee from proceeding further with the work.

N. B. C. Chairman Succumbs To Pneumonia Attack Here; Organized KDKA

Dr. Harry Phillips Davis, chairman of the board of the National Broadcasting Company and internationally known as "the father of radio broadcasting," died at his home, 4917 Wallingford street, at 4:15 a. m. today. He had been ill several months.

REED PROPOSES SALES TAX

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Enactment of a general sales tax was proposed today by Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, a high ranking Republican on the Finance Committee.

Senator Reed, who is close to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and the administration, advocated a tax of one-half of one per cent on all commodities.

He said he would retain the present income tax also, but would plug up some of the "leaks" which he described as permitting rich capitalists to evade the income levies.

The Pennsylvanian said he had not discussed his plan with Secretary Mellon, but had arranged to see the Treasury head late tomorrow.

However, his views were in line with those previously expressed by Mellon to thhe effect that the present tax base is too narrow and new taxes are necessary.

Judge Scorns Jury Failing To Reindict Capone

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—A federal jury today on its investigation of the prohibition charges against "Scarface Al" Capone was refused by United States District Judge James H. Wilkerson today. He said:

"I'm not interested in reports, only in indictments."

A moment later the grand jury appeared before Federal Judge John P. Barnes, advised him it had no indictments to report and was discharged.

The government made no comment on the apparent failure of the jury to carry out the full mandate given by Judge Wilkerson last July, when he directed it to reconsider the evidence and if possible reindict Capone on specific charges carrying heavier penalties.

The original indictment, however, alleging a broad conspiracy against the prohibition act, including 5,000 offenses over a decade, still stands, Judge Wilkerson last Tuesday granted the gangster's request to change his plea on that indictment to not guilty. No date for the trial has been set.

The conspiracy indictment is now subject to call on five days' notice for consideration of the defense motion to quash it and drop the charges.

LABOR BOOS SNOWDEN'S 'CURES'

Chancellor Demands Drastic Measures to Balance Government's Budget

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The British taxpayer received a blow squarely on the chin today with the first swing of the ax of the coalition government's long awaited "ax and tax" budget proposals to balance Britain's top-heavy budget.

Philip Snowden, white-haired chancellor of the exchequer, read his budget proposals to a House of Commons packed to standing room from the speaker's rostrum to the topmost seat in the gallery.

SNOWDEN BOOED

At the conclusion of his speech he was roundly booed by Laborites but cheered by Conservatives and Liberals.

Snowden opened his address by saying that it was proposed to increase the income tax rate by six pence to the pound.

This would raise the rate from four shillings six-pence to five shillings to the pound, or approximately $1.20 tax on each $4.85 of income, equal to about 25 per cent tax.

The next proposal was that the contributions to the sinking fund should be reduced from £50,000,000 to £32,500,000 for this and next year.

Snowden, appearing small and frail and taciturn of countenance, prefaced his bad news for the British taxpayer, the unemployed and industry, by saying:

"I rise to discharge one of the most disagreeable tasks that it has ever fallen my lot to perform.

"Nationally, for some time past we have been living beyond our means. We have been living to a considerable extent upon our capital.

"Our national income is falling rapidly. Three million workers are now inactive, and the profits upon which the national revenue must depend have fallen 20 per cent in the

CREDIT CRISIS SEEN BY CECIL

GENEVA, Sept. 10—AP—Lord Cecil of Great Britain, addressing the League Assembly today, urged the necessity of "reviving international investments" if the world is to be saved from impending financial disaster.

The British delegate read with apparent approval a portion of the Wiggin bankers' committee report and emphasized his conviction that the system of international credits must be reconstructed to escape a collapse in the world's economic system.

He echoed the Wiggin warning that the governments were faced with "imperative need of action—not within a period of years but of months (perhaps weeks). There was in existence an atmosphere of unrest and suspicion, he said, but political conditions were not altogether bad. He added:

"There never was a time when war seemed less probable."

He sharply criticized the policy of holding air maneuvers, mentioning that they had been staged recently in Great Britain, the United States, France and Italy.

DRIVER HELD IN COLLISION KILLING 3

Boy Survivor Telephones Word of Wreck; 6 Hurt, 3 Cars in Crafton Mixup

Clement Garrahan, 21, of 15 Admiral Dewey avenue, Ingram, was held in the County Jail today while officials investigated an automobile collision which caused the death of three persons and injury of six others in Steubenville pike near Crafton late last night.

Mr. Mitsch

Coroner W. J. McGregor at noon fixed bail for Garrahan at $10,000 on a charge of manslaughter.

The crash occurred, according to county detectives, when Garrahan attempted to pass another machine on the Chartiers Creek viaduct, sideswiped it and then collided with an automobile coming in the opposite direction.

The dead were Andrew Irvine, 35, and his daughter, Margery, 10, of 2736 Stafford street, Sheraden, and Edward J. Mitsch, 33, of 2948 Sacramento street, Sheraden. The dead men were brothers-in-law. They were passengers in the Mitsch car. Irvine was pronounced dead on arrival at Mercy Hospital. His daughter died a few hours later. Mitsch was dead on arrival at Haddon Hospital, Sheraden.

CARS DEMOLISHED

The injured are Richard Irvine, 8, son of Andrew Irvine, who is in a serious condition in the Ohio Valley Hospital; James Mitsch, 34, of 2940 Sacramento street, brother of Edward Mitsch, treated at Mercy Hospital; Thomas Powers, of 49 Schley street, Ingram, in a serious condition in Mercy Hospital, and Patrick Howley, of 124 Schley street, and Paul Rockenstein, of 5 Schley street, Ingram, both in St. Joseph Hospital.

The accident occurred, county detectives said, when Garrahan, who was driving west on the viaduct, attempted to pass the machine of Joseph Tagalivia, of 258 Steubenville pike.

EXAMINED BY SURGEON

Garrahan was arrested by County Detective John Geisler at the Ingram car barns a short time after he is alleged to have left the scene of the accident. He was lodged in the Ingram Police Station, where he was pronounced under the influence of liquor by Dr. H. S. Wallace, police said. He was later treated at the Haddon Hospital for lacerations of the face and body and sent to the county jail on a charge of being a hit-and-run driver and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

James Mitsch, Jr., 10, who was injured, crawled from the wreckage and telephoned the news of the wreck to his mother, who was attending a card party with Mrs. Irvine. He ran back to the scene of the accident and took his dog, Pal, which had been killed, from beneath the cars.

Parade to Be Held By Coyne Boosters

An automobile parade boosting the candidacy of State Senator James J. Coyne, candidate for County Commissioner, will cruise principal city streets tonight, beginning at 7 o'clock, it was announced today.

The parade will terminate in Oakland where a street dance will be held. A program during the dance calls for addresses by Senator Coyne and Mayor Charles H. Kline. The speakers will be introduced by Councilman Michael J. Muldowney.

WABASH DEAL OPPOSED AT HEARING

Downtown Dealer Avers Terminal Abandonment Would Injure Business

The Terminal Coal and Coke Company, with retail yards at 129 Fancourt street, today opposed the sale of the Wabash Bridge and tunnel to Allegheny County, at the initial hearing before the Public Service Commission.

Walter H. Ecker, president of the company, declared abandonment of the overhead bridge at Fancourt street from which coal is dumped into the yards would be a serious blow to his business. The company has $70,000 invested, supplies 100 stores and office buildings and 2,500 domestic consumers, he said.

H. H. Temple, chief engineer of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad, successor to the Wabash, was the first witness. He placed the book value of the bridge and tunnel in excess of $5,400,000. The county bought it for $3,000,000.

County Commissioner F. V. Babcock, called to the stand, was asked if the Commissioners had approved the purchase of the bridge and tunnel. He replied:

"Yes, that was the one time that we all got together."

He cited benefits of the proposed vehicular outlet, describing it as a boon to the Point district.

RICH BOATMAN VANISHES

wanted to get to the Norwalk Hospital.

SIGNS OF STRUGGLE

Her husband refused because he had no lights on the cruiser, she said.

When he refused, she said, one of the two drew a gun and ordered him to pull up the anchor and head for the Connecticut shore. Her husband complied with the order and started. She then went below and after a time attempted to push a mattress through a forward hatch, apparently to use it in case she went overboard.

Mrs. Collins said her attempt was discovered by the two.

Then, she said, her husband was tied hand and foot and set adrift in a small boat and the cruiser was headed again for Long Island where she was placed on the untenanted yacht in Oyster Bay.

An injured man was brought aboard the cruiser, Mrs. Collins said, but she did not see him. Police found bloodstains on the cruiser. The cabin and cockpit of the cruiser showed signs of a terrific struggle and several milk bottles were broken.

POLICE CALLED, BANNER STAYS

The banner of James P. Rooney, administration candidate for Council, is floating in the breeze in front of the gas station of Carl Hammel, 3150 East street, today.

It was stretched from two poles just as officers arrived in response to a protest by Hammel, police said.

Before Hammel knew whose candidacy was to be urged on the banner, he had called the police. He didn't want to have his customers think he was taking sides in the County Commissionership fight. When the name of Rooney came into view, police said, Hammel withdrew his objections.

DAVIS, PIONEER OF RADIO, DIES

most important advances of the electrical world were made, these relating mainly to meters, measuring instruments, circuit breakers, railway control apparatus, transmission equipments and radio.

Among his early achievements was his work in the electrification of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, the world's first single phase railway electrification.

WAR-TIME MUNITIONS CHIEF

During the World War he had charge of all the Westinghouse contracts for munitions.

As widely known as he was in engineering and industrial fields, it was for his development of radio broadcasting that he was known best. At a time when the public and engineers thought of radio as a means of private or point-to-point communication, he established Station KDKA, in November 2, 1920, the first broadcasting station in the world.

This marked the birth of broadcasting, which Dr. Davis always considered a public service and trust. Following it, he quickly placed other stations in service.

He was active in every phase of radio, and was its foremost guiding spirit.

DIRECTOR OF CORPORATIONS

Dr. Davis was a director in a number of corporations, among them the Westinghouse Electric International Company, the Radio Corporation of America, R. C. A. Photophone, Inc., Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, Automatic Gear Shift Company and the R. C. A. Victor Company, Inc.

He was a member of the University Club, the Pittsburgh Athletic Association and the Oakmont and Edgewood Country Clubs, and of many engineering and scientific societies.

He was born in Somersworth, N. H., in 1868, and was graduated from the Worcester Polytechnic Institute with the degree of bachelor in science in engineering.

Besides his widow, he leaves a son, Harry R. Davis, and a daughter, Mrs. Louise Rockwell.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Saturday. Interment will be in Worcester, Mass.

Announcement of Mr. Davis' death was made at 8 a. m. today over all Westinghouse and National Broadcasting Company's stations.

FORGED NAMES ON TAX LIST BARED

cause they previously had paid a property tax.

GEORGE CIBEREY, also listed from the Bates street address, is not known to Mrs. Ciberey or her daughter.

CLIFF ARNOLD, at 33 Bates street, who is unknown to Miss Genevieve Olszewski, who said she and her mother had lived there for years.

LEONARD CHARVETTA, at 67 Bates street, was found in his barber shop in the 1700 block East Carson street, and said:

"I moved away from Bates street 11 months ago — and never voted or got a tax receipt from that address."

CHARLES W. AND ELLA BIRD, at 275 Bates street, who are not known to neighbors.

THOMAS COYNE, 3584 Frazier street. There is no such street address, the numbers in that block stopping at 3538.

JAMES and KATHRYN BERNSTEIN, at 3606 Frazie, street, where A. Cohen, who said he had lived at that address for three years, told investigators:

"Harry Bernstein lived here but moved away three years ago. He lives further up in Oakland now."

OTHERS INVESTIGATED

These nine names represented but a partial check of the first 200 names on Neely's list. Others were being investigated today as the Registration Commission and private workers scanned other "wholesale" lists for possible fraudulent attempts to enroll illegal voters.

Churchill B. Mehard, counsel for the Registration Commission, said that many of the "wholesale" lists undoubtedly would be found legitimate, but others were expected to yield evidence of fraud.

E. Lowry Humes, secretary of the Registration Commission, charged that the registration had been "damnably rotten" and added:

"If the people of the city don't rise up and rebel, they ought to be ashamed of themselves."

District Attorney Andrew T. Park has promised immediate action in any vote or election fraud uncovered during the present campaign, but so far had done nothing to support the promise.

There are more than 100 of the larger "wholesale" tax receipts lists, all of which are to be checked. The most outstanding of them, in addition to Neely's, are those of:

Alex Reed, a city fireman with 1,226 in the Twenty-fifth Ward and smaller numbers in other districts; James E. Routley, assistant chief clerk in the County Commissioners' office, with 526 in the Seventeenth Ward, 12 in the Eighteenth, 25 in the Nineteenth and 26 in the Fourth; Scott Morgan, former Registration Commissioner, with 598 in the Fourteenth Ward, John Dean with 378 in the Eighth Ward, and Samuel J. Reno with 229 in the Nineteenth Ward.

These lists contain receipts issued prior to September 5 and most of them according to delinquent tax office officials, have been increased since.

MORE WORKERS

Additional workers were hired yesterday by the Registration Commission—three typists who started preparation of lists of suspected assessments. These will be used in checking the registration books Sunday and Monday.

Just what procedure will be followed in eliminating fraudulent registrations was not disclosed. In the past the method has been to serve notice by registered letter and in the event of non-delivery names have been stricken from the lists.

Warrants for the arrest of Tony Siano and Tony Scilla, district leaders in the Third Ward arrested by state troopers Tuesday night with alleged fraudulent tax receipts in their possession, had not been served late last night. They were released on their own recognizance by the Registration Commissioners and yesterday were charged with conspiracy to violate the registration law.

BOND POSTED

Bond in $1,000 was posted for Thomas (Kid) Welch and James Beattie, Negroes, at the Registration Commission today as an aftermath of the arrest of 11 Negroes on Tuesday. Welch is owner of the automobile in which nine armed Negroes were arrested near the Letsche school. The Third Ward Voters' League was trying to arrange bail for the nine, but representatives told the Commissioners that they could not raise the $2,000 each set for the men.

Youth of Today Idiotic, Edna Ferber Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (INS)—The younger generation in America is "12 years old permanently." Its reaction to the serious problems that confront it is "oh, yeah?"

Such, at least, is the opinion of Edna Ferber, novelist, who has just returned to this country. Miss Ferber says she has nothing personal against the younger generation, which she considers to be any age from 17 to 30, but that as far as she can ascertain it just doesn't think. She said:

"Nothing matters to the young men and women of today but wise cracking. The boys and girls that are going to college have absolutely no serious discussion. In this country to be serious is to be ridiculous.

"The young are beautiful, inarticulate young idiots. They're the most beautiful creatures in the world. And they're 12 years old permanently."

HUNT FOR POWERS' ACCOMPLICE SHIFTS TO UNIONTOWN

SLEUTHS DROP SEARCH IN PITTSBURGH

Prisoner Says Capture Will Solve Killings; Admits Being Dutch Immigrant

After veiling their movements in secrecy, and holding many conferences with County Detective Chief George W. Murren, Clarksburg authorities, who turned the spotlight in the West Virginia Bluebeard murders to Pittsburgh for a few hours today, left the city shortly after noon for Uniontown.

The left empty-handed but apparently satisfied the mysterious "Charles Rodgers" mentioned frequently by Harry F. Powers matrimonial agency Romeo confessed slayer of two women and three children, was not now, if ever, in Pittsburgh.

BANK CHECK CLUE

In Uniontown the Clarksburg officers—Detective Paul Southern and Chief Deputy Sheriff Simeon Bond—plan to check up on the identity of the stranger who cashed a check there several weeks ago signed by Mrs. Dorothy P. Lemke, of Worcester, Mass., one of the Bluebeard's victims.

During the morning a tall stranger, whose description resembled that of Rodgers, talked with County Detective Chief George Murren. Following the conference Chief Murren said:

"He is not the man. He has no connection with the case."

When the unidentified stranger departed, county and Clarksburg detectives left County Detective headquarters bearing a portmanteau filled with letters and photographs. These were loaded into detective automobiles which sped away.

By DAVID P. SENTNER

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 10. The mystery mask of Harry Powers and other aliases alleged slayer of widows and enigma of the world of criminology, was partially stripped away today.

Powers today stood identified as Herman Drenth, 39-year-old native of Holland, recorded as having immigrated to Iowa 21 years ago.

Positive identification of his picture was made by Henry Kamp, of Belmond, Ia., with whom Drenth lived when he arrived from Holland.

INQUIRY BEARS FRUIT

The identification by Kamp of Powers as the young immigrant boy he knew was the result of a careful investigation conducted by International News Service leading over a long trail.

Powers, after hiding behind a number of names, admitted his real name was Herman Drenth.

DENIES MURDERS

In an exclusive interview with International News Service in the county jail, Powers appeared defiant, taciturn and bitter.

"Did you murder Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, Mrs. Asta Eicher and her three children?"

"I never murdered anybody. Find that bird Rogers and you'll find out who committed those murders."

From the first Powers has contended that the last he saw of Mrs. Eicher was when she was driving away for Denver in the automobile of Rogers. He was asked:

"Where did Rogers come from?"

"From around Pittsburgh, I believe."

Powers went on:

"They make a lot of noise about my writing letters to women. Well, there's no crime in that."

"What was the secret of your success with women?"

"Baloney! That's a silly question."

A motorcycle patrol to guard the home of Mrs. Powers and Eva Strother was ordered today at the request of the women, who said they were fearful of the crowds in the daytime and the prowlers at night.

FIREMEN FIGHTING FLAMES ON THE SIXTH FLOOR OF BUILDING AT 1024-28 FIFTH AVENUE

4-ALARM FIRE INVESTIGATED

The bomb and arson squad of the City Detective Bureau today was investigating a four-alarm fire which swept through the Patent Garment and Manufacturing Company shop on the top floor of a six-story building at 1024-26-28 Fifth avenue, and resulted in injury to five men and damage estimated at $35,000 last night.

The injured were Louis Conley, deputy chief, laceration of back; Wallon White and Joseph Sullivan, of No. 3 Engine Company, overcome by smoke, in Mercy Hospital; I. W. Ulp, fireman of No. 32 Engine Company, lacerations on right hand, and William Hurley, emergency man of the Peoples Natural Gas Company, laceration on head.

Ten persons were led to safety from an adjoining building at 1024 Fifth avenue when the flames broke out.

The fourth and fifth floors of the building are vacant. The others are occupied by Imperial Hosiery Company, Max Horn & Co., and Allon Brothers & Co. Heavy damage was done to stock in the building by water.

Serum, Sped by Air, Cheats Death of Victim

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—Hope was held today for the recovery of Mrs. Andrew Nelson, mother of six children, stricken with Addison's disease, now that cortin, a rare serum, was available for her treatment.

A nationwide appeal for a supply of the glandular compound derived from adrenal glands of cattle enlisted services of two large universities, two of the country's big air lines, the United States Postoffice Department and city officials.

Dr. Frank Hartman, University of Buffalo, offered Dr. A. T. Kenyon, University of Chicago, the meager supply in his laboratory and it was rushed by plane to this city in five hours. A police squad dashed from the airport to the hospital, where Mrs. Nelson had been removed in an ambulance furnished by the city Health Commissioner.

Last night Dr. Kenyon was prepared to administer small doses if a crisis is reached. Mrs. Nelson, from her hospital bed, whispered that she knew now she would live.

'ENCHANTRESS' OF RICH BOY HIDDEN

Girl Suing Lad's Mother Won't Name 'Vamp' From Whom She 'Saved' Him

By HERBERT CARYL
International News Service.

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—One name was missing today among the characters in the story of the ultra-modern real society life drama being written around the "world's richest boy."

It was the name of the "enchantress"—the mysterious New York "adventuress" who allegedly tried to "vamp" him for his wealth.

Miss Mildred King, pretty music student from Nashville, Tenn., who demands $100,000 in Federal Court from the millions of Mrs. Henrietta G. Hartford for "saving" George Huntington Hartford II from the "clutches" of the New York "gold digger," refused to reveal the name.

Through her secretary at her estate in Newport, R. I., where her son was a boyhood "tennis friend" to Miss Doris Duke, the "world's richest girl," Mrs. Hartford issued a complete denial and remarked that the lawsuit was "one of those cases wealthy people have to put up with."

George, the storm center, had nothing to say, while the pretty music teacher in Boston declared she will fight to the finish for her "wages." When asked for the name of the "adventuress," Miss King said:

"I couldn't tell who she is. It was a business proposition. Mrs. Hartford introduced me to her son. I, in turn, introduced him to several nice girls. Our relations were purely platonic. From time to time, I communicated with his mother. I reported the progress I was making. She seemed pleased."

According to her assertion Miss King worked out a campaign. She played the part of "sister." She introduced the youth, a student at Harvard, into her own circle until he was the envy of his classmates across the Charles. She cultivated, she claimed, his taste for music until the fascination of the New York "adventuress" gradually faded from the picture. Meanwhile, the "saved" boy little dreamed of the "rush" he was being given.

Now comes the word from "Seaverage," the summer home of Mrs. Hartford at Newport:

"I do not know any such Mildred King. I never made any such bargain or contract. My son never knew any such New York adventuress. The entire story is denied."

Young Hartford is a grandson of and was named after George Huntington Hartford, founder of a grocery store chain system. His two uncles, John and George Hartford, control the gigantic corporation. The fortune of the family has been estimated at $700,000,000.

The Hartford estate in Newport adjoins that of Miss Doris Duke, heir to the great tobacco fortune. A few years back when George II and Doris were playing tennis on the Duke private courts, rumors were current that the two great fortunes were to be joined by marriage.

MOTHER FINDS 4 SAVED IN FIRE

While fire was still raging at 1028 Fifth avenue last night a mother with a tear-stained face searched through the throng of spectators for her four children, carried to the street by police and a neighbor girl. The mother is Mrs. Anna Pruni, of 1034 Fifth avenue, and her children are Steve, 9; Mike, 12; Margaret, 4, and Josephine, 8.

The mother's story of blaze and rescues, pitifully punctuated by anxious glances through the crowd of onlookers and by an occasional sob, follows:

"The fire came up very quickly. Everything was quiet one minute and the next, everything was upside-down. All at once the fire was all around us, policemen came and took us out. When I got to the street I looked for my babies but—I can't find them at all. Maybe some of the neighbors have them. I only hope nothing happens to them."

Nothing had happened to them. They were found shortly afterward with Peggy Koval, 18, of the same address, who had carried the baby Margaret from the flames. Mrs. Pruni's face brightened and she eagerly chattered of other things.

Those treated at Passavant Hospital are Ben Harris and William Garner, of the Helping Hand; Charles Hancock, of 53 Crawford street; Henry Butler, 10 Green way, and Harry Watson, 1420 Wylie avenue.

Fumes from the chemical spread through the first and second floors routing diners in the Green Room dining room on the second floor.

Firemen donned gas masks to search the building for other victims, but all had escaped.

Gronau Takes Liner For 'Real Adventure'

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau, who has flown from Germany to the United States twice within a year, left for Germany last night on the liner Hamburg.

The man who conquered the treacherous airways over the Arctic declared flying is only a "dull bore" and that real adventure to him means crossing the Atlantic in a regular boat. He said:

"Flying is nothing. You just sit there hour after hour, and what do you do, what do you see?"

Heiress to Wed

MURIEL McCORMICK

The engagement of the granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller to Elisha Dyer Hubbard, of Middletown, Conn., was announced yesterday by her mother and the "surprise" romance will culminate late today in their marriage at Bar Harbor (Me.). Family is happy.

WEDDING TODAY CAPS ROMANCE OF HEIRESS

Muriel McCormick Follows Family Custom in Her Surprise Engagement

BULLETIN.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Muriel McCormick and Elisha D. Hubbard were married here today.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Muriel McCormick, granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, has let her family in on a little secret, namely, her engagement to Elisha P. Hubbard, 52-year-old wealthy bachelor of Middletown, Conn.

Like her sister, Mathilde, who married Max Oser, a Swiss riding master, and like her brother Fowler, who recently wed Mrs. Anne U. (Fifi) Stillman, she managed her romance with so much secrecy that the news came as a distinct surprise.

The first information her relatives obtained of the engagement apparently was a letter to the home of her mother, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, announcing her intention. This was made public late yesterday by Mrs. McCormick's secretary, but it gave no details as to the time or place of the wedding. It was announced later the ceremony would take place today at Bar Harbor, Me.

BROTHER "HAPPY"

Fowler McCormick said he was not acquainted with Hubbard, but was very happy over the news of his sister's romance.

Harold McCormick, her father, an executive of the International Harvester Company, founded by her grandfather, Cyrus McCormick, could not be reached here for comment. He is in the East, and was expected at the ceremony.

Miss McCormick, 29, is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, who were divorced in 1921.

Announcement of her engagement added another chapter to her many activities which frequently have figured in the news. She was estranged from her father when he married Mme. Ganna Walska, the singer.

SPIRITUALISTIC BRIDE

On another occasion she announced she had "met" George McKinlock, Jr., the dead son of Mrs. George A. McKinlock, her chaperone, at a spiritualistic seance and she proclaimed him as her "spiritualistic bridegroom." She had never met George Jr., who was killed in the World War, but after the proclamation she wore a wedding ring.

In recent years Miss McCormick has spent much of her time with Mr. and Mrs. McKinlock in Chicago, Palm Beach and Bar Harbor. She has been a leading figure in Red Cross and other charity drives in Chicago, and was the first woman guarantor of the Chicago Civic Opera.

PATRON OF THEATER

After her social debut Miss McCormick became active in theatricals, and reports were current at one time that she was considering a motion picture career. Last winter she financed and organized the Playhouse at Palm Beach. At times her aim was toward the opera, although not professionally.

In 1922 Miss McCormick appeared behind the footlights under the name of "Nawanna Micor." Last April she was Mona Lisa in "The Face" at the Palm Beach Playhouse.

She is regarded as an accomplished yachtswoman.

Success Makes Girls Brag, Says Woman Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(Universal.)—Feminine modesty seems to disappear with success, and successful women brag more than successful men. But perhaps that is because success is new to them.

So Eleanor Patterson, editor of the Washington Herald, writes in the October issue of Cosmopolitan magazine, now on news stands. She declares:

"A successful man sits down, looks around, longs to be petted, demands to be admired. But a successful woman brags in another way. She brags ferociously. She sets her jaw and won't let go. I think it is because nationwide success is new to women, and they are still scared to death lest somebody or something come along and take it from them."

There are, of course, exceptions, continues Miss Patterson. She mentions Mary Roberts Rinehart, author, charming and unassuming despite success, and Alice Longworth, who "never brags."

Tomorrow night's meeting will mark the [illegible] the firemen for Mansfield in the campaign.

MALONE SEEKS FIGHT

James F. M[illegible] of Mansfield [illegible] Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, which already has [illegible] Butler [illegible] from Senator [illegible] Commissioner [illegible] Governor [illegible] further [illegible] of the anti-Mansfield Social Coyne and McGovern [illegible] tered the [illegible] Observers expect Mansfield to embrace [illegible] attacks he has [illegible] Armstrong.

It is [illegible] that Mansfield [illegible] directly [illegible] Mansfield [illegible] of both Mansfield [illegible] been [illegible] arrangement [illegible] himself [illegible] of being [illegible] didate appointee [illegible]

INDORSEMENT RUMORS

It is known that McGovern withheir[illegible] Mansfield only because there was no [illegible] ness to the [illegible] attachment [illegible] was by Mayor Kline to [illegible] Armstrong, [illegible] whom Mansfield [illegible] Governor [illegible] at odds for four years [illegible] county building. Some of the [illegible] dent Republican [illegible] have thought they [illegible] Mansfield unless he [illegible] Armstrong though [illegible] are quietly planning to [illegible] for McGovern because Mansfield has not injured the independent [illegible] and they expect [illegible] to at the beginning [illegible]

An indorsement of Armstrong by Mansfield would hurt the whole independent headquarters against the Senator. What effect an indorsement of Mansfield by Armstrong would have is uncertain. There are persistent reports that such an indorsement is imminent, though the recent strategy of the sympathetic press would indicate they expected to have any explanation of their candidacies [illegible] by such statements as that of Mansfield.

It is considered significant that while City Controller J. P. Kerr indorsed Armstrong at a Twentieth Ward meeting Tuesday night the Mansfield speaking from the same platform confined himself to urging a [illegible] of Coyne.

Mansfield's declaration a day after that indorsement has made it a practical certainty that Mayor Kline will do nothing to aid Armstrong. There are some who believe he will increase his efforts on behalf of Coyne who was assailed by Mansfield. It was considered possible that he may resign certain [illegible] who were permitted on their second choice and insist they vote for Coyne alone.

Administration leaders are perturbed at the effect attaching any substantial number of names from the registration books may have on the coming primaries. The names of the [illegible] are from districts where the Mayor, Director Robert A. Lavelle and John M. Phillips, Representative James F. Rooney and Magistrate William J. Boost are expected to draw their chief support.

Armstrong at a Ross Township meeting [illegible] after saying votes for himself, told the gathering he should also vote for "My good friend Jimmy Coyne." The district comprising Ross Township is Armstrong's home territory due to the influence of Miles Bro[illegible] who is supporting both candidates.

In this campaign Armstrong and Coyne [illegible] are the same kind of men [illegible] the French and Germans were in 1918.

CONSTITUTION FETE URGED

Mayor Charles H. Kline today asked citizens to remember the spirit of gratitude that moved the [illegible] Washington [illegible] at [illegible] Thursday.

In part the Mayor's proclamation said:

"I suggest that the actual day of the anniversary be made memorable by the reconsecration to the ideals and inspirations which inspired our patriot fathers to affix their names to the greatest human document the minds of men have ever conceived—the fundamental law of our land—that we rededicate our lives to the defense of our sacred rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Candidate Argues 'Case' in Talk Over Radio

J. Boyd Duff, Jr., candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, argued a hypothetical court case in a broadcast last night over WWSW.

He traced a typical case of "John Doe," a carpenter, who was hit by an automobile and got his legs crushed from the date of filing the damage case to the trial date.

Duff reviewed the old-fashioned procedure now in use and then illustrated where the delays would be removed by the modern methods he proposes.

Addressing the Bellevue Civic League and the Wilkinsburg Citizens' Union last night, Paul M. Bardes of Oakmont, candidate for Poor Director, told voters that the three incumbents, Maj. J. "Before you vote for Directors of the Poor, find out what other candidates have the best chance and vote only for them. I am certain your inquiries will disclose that I am one of the outstanding men in the field."

Neely Newlyweds May Be Barred From School

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—A ruling of the school board that married persons cannot attend school here may bar John Champ Neely, 17, son of United States Senator M. M. Neely, and his 16-year-old bride, from classes. The two seniors in high school, eloped to Cumberland, Md., and were married late in August. The wedding was made known by young Neely Tuesday.

The youthful bridegroom said he had approached all the members of the school board and that three of the five favored a relinquishing of the ban to allow the young couple to finish high school.

The ruling against married persons attending high school was made some years ago when there were a number of high school marriages.

William B. McFall, Jr., chairman of the speakers' committee promoting District Attorney Andrew T. Park's candidacy for a full term, addressing a meeting yesterday in Park's headquarters in the Plaza Building, replied to criticism from Park's opponent by recalling the latter's tactics on a former occasion. McFall said:

W. Martin.

"We all know that Judge Martin's moral cleanliness and splendid civic idealism were never questioned by any informed or thoughtful persons. Mr. Park's opponent, I believe, is no nearer correct in his attacks on Mr. Park than he was in his onslaughts on the good name of Judge Martin."

SCHOOL CENSUS SHOWS GAIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—School attendance in the United States increased between 1920 and 1930 at a rate greater than the gain in population, according to figures issued today by the Bureau of Census. In the former year 64.3 per cent of those between 5 and 20 years having been at their classes as compared with 69.9 per cent in the latter.

Out of the total population of 38,387,032 in the 5-20 age group last year, 26,849,639 were attending school some time since September 1, 1929, census figures taken April 1 of the following year revealed. This was an increase of about 5,500,000 from the preceding census.

Figures showed that 13,521,768 of the male population between these ages, or 70.2 per cent, were in school in the 1929-1930 period, an increase of nearly 3,000,000 from 1920, while 13,327,871 girls, or 69.7 of the total between the 5-20 mark, were given as students.

Virtually all physically and mentally fit young children were in schools at the last census, the figures indicate. A total of 95.5 per cent of the 17,209,566 children between 7 and 13 years were returned as in schools. This was a material improvement from the 1920 census, which showed but 90.6 per cent of the 15,306,793 of that age as students.

2 VANDERBILT SAILORS FINED

APIA, Western Samoa, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Two young stewards who complained of ill treatment and breach of contract aboard the yacht Alva, on which W. K. Vanderbilt, of New York, and a party are cruising the South Seas, found themselves in more trouble today.

Vanderbilt went into the High Court of Western Samoa last Friday and defended himself successfully against the charges brought by the junior stewards, Max Selinger, a Hungarian, and Herbert Grillmaier, an Austrian.

The yacht, with six passengers and crew of 49, was due to continue to Suva, Fiji Islands, but Sunday the two men deserted.

They were caught yesterday and convicted of being "prohibited immigrants." Each was given the maximum penalty of £100 fine, in default of which they were ordered to six months' imprisonment.

Perjury Admitted By Edwards' Witness

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Thomas Wenstrom, who has been in jail since July awaiting trial on a charge of perjury in connection with a divorce suit brought by William (Big Bill) Edwards, former Princeton football star, pleaded guilty yesterday.

Wenstrom, 34, a salesman, admitted by his plea that he had given false testimony against Edwards' wife, Mrs. Norma Jones Edwards. He was remanded to jail for sentencing later.

Discontinuance of Edwards' divorce suit will be asked.

Mrs. Edwards' suit for separate maintenance still is pending.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

PARK BOOSTED BY FOOD PROBE ATTORNEY

Counsel for Citizens and Women Voters Praises Prosecutor for Actions

Earl F. Reed, attorney for the Citizens' Committee and the League of Women Voters in the grand jury investigation of the City Department of Supplies, today replied to attacks from opponents of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, candidate for a full term.

Speaking at Park headquarters in the Plaza Building at a noon meeting today, Reed declared the District Attorney's opponents could not hope to cure all the ills of a crime wave, as if by the wave of the hand, Reed said.

"I think I am able to appreciate in a considerable measure the problems encountered in the administration of criminal justice in Allegheny County and from that experience I believe Mr. Park is performing his duties strictly in accordance with his oath of office.

"From personal contact with him, I am convinced he is sincere and honest. When conditions arose that made it necessary to attack persons in high places politically, he accepted the responsibility and worked hard in the accomplishment of his duty. Mr. Park established indisputably his ability and independence of thought and action.

"Upon the conclusion of the investigation by the grand jury, the executive committee of the citizens' group and the League of Women Voters commended Mr. Park for his fearlessness and thoroughness in the discharge of his duties. As counsel for the committee, I subscribed heartily.

"I have respect for Mr. Park's opponent and the sincerity of his motives, but I cannot believe that his election would remedy all the things he complains of, as if by a wave of the hand."

Candidate Scores Poor Home Methods

Asserting that the Directors of the Poor of Allegheny County should voluntarily offer their books for an independent audit each year, Bernard J. Flynn, of Crafton, today asked taxpayers to send new members to the board. He said:

"It is my understanding that a large percentage of the employes of the County Home and Hospital at Woodville are residents of Ohio and West Virginia and I want to state that, if elected, I would seek to have only bona fide residents of this county employed."

LARIMER FIGHTS RAIL CROSSING

Citizens of Larimer, Westmoreland County, had another inning yesterday before the Public Service Commission in their four-year-old fight for abolishing a Pennsylvania Railroad grade crossing, described as dangerous.

The protestants, led by John P. Butler, testified 730 automobiles and 1,015 pedestrians used the crossing last Thursday. Local and express trains passing that point daily are 175. In the last few years one person has been killed and six injured.

Plans for replacing the crossing with a bridge or a traffic tunnel were submitted. Completion of the new Irwin and Trafford highway joining the Larimer road will create an additional traffic hazard, the protestants said.

Good merchandise cheap makes a shopper's paradise, but cheap prices on cheapened things are nothing to brag about. Quality is a serious matter here in Rosenbaum's 63rd Anniversary, yet prices are down to new low levels... even much further down than today's regular low prices. Wives on budgets, daughters on allowances and business girls on allowances, as well as men with an eye for quality and a leaning to thrift, are making the most of these values. WIDOW FIGHTS MAZER PAROLE

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 10 (AP).—Mrs. Florence E. Mellett, widow of Don R. Mellett, Canton (O.) editor slain in 1926, has protested a move to obtain a parole for Louis Mazer, serving a term for manslaughter in connection with Mellett's death. She sent the following telegram to the Ohio State Board of Pardons:

"I want to protest any parole of Louis Mazer from the Ohio Penitentiary. Mazer only turned state's evidence after two others had been convicted of taking the life of my husband. He told nothing that was not known."

CANTON, O., Sept. 10 (AP).—Common Pleas Judge Henry W. Harter, Jr., has recommended to the State Board of Pardons the paroling of Louis Mazer, one of the alleged conspirators in the slaying in 1926 of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher.

Judge Harter said his recommendation was the fulfillment of a promise made in 1927 when Mazer turned state's evidence and aided Harter then prosecuting attorney, in his investigation of the slaying.

Motorists, Remember the Children!

EVERY man and woman shrinks from the very thought of harm coming to children. To protect them from danger in any form is a common human impulse.

Although children are being better safeguarded each year, thousands of youthful lives are still needlessly sacrificed annually in street and highway accidents. Last year this sacrifice included fully 5,000 boys and girls—as dear to their parents as your own—and of this number around 700 were occupants of cars.

Since most children live in a realm outside the world of realities, others older need to watch over them. The driver of an automobile, for instance, never knows when he may suddenly come face to face with the stark actuality of a child darting out in front of him, either along country highways or in business and residential sections.

There's a twofold reason for motorists to remember the children: First, that their lives may be spared, and secondly, to set before them a good example of conduct.

TWO OF VIONNET'S CHARMING CREATION FOR AUTUMN WEAR

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Vionnet has never missed a season in giving to women some of the smartest models of the age. I don't think there could be anyone who would not fall—and fall hard—for the lovely evening frock of silver cloth. What could be more sophisticated.

Two triangular pieces are used to form the top of the corsage in front and reaching up to the neck line, they are joined in back to support the bodice. At their lower edges they are rolled and twisted into ropes which, passing to the back in a sloping line to the waist, suddenly and effectively evolve into a roped sash which ties around and is knotted in a bow at one side. The very wide and graceful skirt is set onto a hip yoke pointed at the center, front and back.

SUITS ARE TAKING a prominent place in the new collection—both two and three piece models. And we have to thank Vionnet again for the rust-colored tweed with a whitish gray fleck that makes the autumn tailleur sketched. Note the draped scarf-collar of rust cotton velvet that ties in a huge bow at the front. The belt is of matching color, and the plain skirt is cut circularly and with a decided flare.

NOTHING TOO fussy about either of these creations, and certainly not a hint of the Victorian influence. So you see you can still be smart this season, even if you don't go in for frills and feathers.

FRESH TODAY

You get the first pick of the catch

Only the choicest of the fish brought in by our trawlers are selected to be filleted, wrapped in parchment and rushed on ice to your dealer as 40-Fathom Fish. And, also, because they are never frozen, they're as different from ordinary fish in tenderness and flavor as spring lamb is from mutton.

What you buy is only the heaviest, juiciest cut, all ready to be put in a pan and cooked for dinner tonight or breakfast tomorrow. There is no waste to 40-Fathom Fish; that's why it's economical to pay somewhat more for these fresh fillets than you do when you buy the head, tail, bones, and fins of other fish. 40-Fathom Fish are fresh today!

To Fry 40-Fathom Fillets

Cut into portions, roll in cornmeal or finely-ground bread crumbs . . . Lay fish in hot fat, cook brown on each side. Two to five minutes is sufficient for any but large portions.

Don't Suffer So... This Medicine will Help You

Her Nervous Prostration

DO you know her . . . this poor woman who wakes up as tired as she went to bed?

Her head is still aching . . . her nerves are ragged . . . she's on the verge of tears as she faces another day of work.

"I can't go through it again . . . I can't. Oh, what is the matter? What shall I do?" she cries.

How many young women are fast approaching a nervous breakdown because they let suffering due to female weakness rob them of their strength and health.

In offices or in their homes, they drive themselves, working "on their nerve." Hoping against hope that tomorrow they will feel better . . . but instead they become more and more prostrated.

Nature did not mean women to suffer so cruelly. If they would only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound! It has befriended women against their "peculiar" troubles for over 50 years.

It brings soothing, comforting relief . . . gently corrects through its strengthening tonic action.

PLAYGROUND SEASON BUSY

Reports of activities at the city's 21 swimming pools and nearly 100 playgrounds were being compiled today by the Bureau of Recreation for submission to Public Works Director Lang. The study is being made by W. C. Batchelor, superintendent.

Playgrounds and outdoor swimming pools, with the exception of a few centers to be in operation until November 1, have been closed for the present year, Batchelor said. The season just ended, he declared, was the busiest in the bureau's history. More children attended sessions at the recreation centers, more children swam and more adults attended the bureau's band concerts than ever before.

Several score life guards and play supervisors who held temporary jobs with the bureau throughout the summer months have been released. Many of them, according to Batchelor, were college athletes who are now preparing to return to their studies.

LINK FORGOTTEN IN BUS ROUTE

When the Harmony Short Line Motor Transportation Company obtained a certificate to operate buses between Pittsburgh and New Castle following the abandonment of part of the Short Line Railways, the company forgot to cover part of its route from Perry highway to Bradford Woods.

A roadway leads from Perry highway at or near Warrendale to Bradford Woods, and buses have been operating for a short distance over this route, but without permission. The certificate called for the Perry highway.

The error, when discovered, resulted in application to the Public Service Commission for permission to operate as indicated, the hearing being held by Examiner W. F. Best. No opposition developed.

French Railroads To Be Electrified

PARIS, (INS)—According to engineers' reports published here, the four main railroad companies in France, the State, Midi, Paris-Orleans and P. L. M., will be completely electrified before 1941.

BEN AVON CHAIN STORE HELD UP

An armed robber held up A. Leitch, manager of a chain grocery at 1119 Church avenue, Ben Avon, a few minutes after he opened the store today, compelled him to lie face downward on the floor and fled with about $150.

The robber leaped into a car driven by a confederate and the pair sped toward Pittsburgh. Leitch ran 100 yards to the Ben Avon borough hall and notified police.

Have you what is commonly called that Tired Feeling?

"Mother, I do wish you were well and strong"

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

"I just can't go on"—how often you hear this.

So often the reason is simple—that good body of ours has run down—under the strain of our way of living—pressure of work and worry.

Those important precious red-blood-cells that mean so much to vitality become lowered in count . . . the hemoglobin percentage begins to fall and we wonder "what is the matter."

If this is your trouble, why not take steps to overcome it—remembering that a "tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness. A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease.

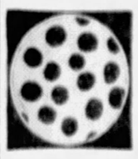
Sometimes it is a lagging appetite that leads to underweight and ill health in various manifestations.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

For generations S.S.S., as a tonic, has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

You should know that S.S.S. has the distinct advantage of being composed of fresh vegetable medicinal ingredients in concentrated form . . . it is Mother Nature's formula.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.



Don't let them count you out!

LOWER TAXATION!

THE DEMAND OF OVER A MILLION PEOPLE

SENATOR W. D. MANSFIELD

At no time in the history of Allegheny county have conditions made it as imperative as today that the taxpayers choose their new county commissioners with the utmost care.

Administration of the affairs of so large a county involves the outlay of vast sums of the public's money. The public demands, and is entitled to receive full value for every dollar expended.

To obtain the best values, and at the same time place taxation at the lowest possible rate, the taxpayers must see that men of integrity, experienced in business, in finance and in public service are entrusted with the duties of this important office.

My record in the Senate of Pennsylvania and in the life of the county constitute my qualifications for the honor of being elected to the office of county commissioner.

If I am elected, I pledge to the taxpayers the greatest of care and discretion in the spending of their money.

With this thought firmly entrenched in my mind, I solicit your vote at the primaries on September 15.

STOCKING
S-T-R-A-I-N
comes when you climb stairs, bend, stretch, even put on your shoes! If elasticity has been destroyed, silk threads break, starting ruinous runs.

that makes stockings wear

DON'T DESTROY IT!

DID you ever stop to think that your stockings are knitted? Knitted with silk threads that give under strain—stretch and then spring back again because they are elastic.

This elasticity is precious. When it is destroyed the silk threads, instead of giving, break under strain. Then it is that runs start at the slightest provocation!

The fit, too, is destroyed. Wrinkles at the heel and ankle. Crooked seams. The stockings that you bought because you loved their flattering beauty are ruined!

That is why Lux is made especially to preserve elasticity. It offers you a sure way to make your stockings keep their beauty and fit, and to make even the sheerest ones really wear.

*The Lux Way to preserve the elasticity that makes stockings WEAR and FIT

Wash after EACH wearing. Perspiration left in the stocking will actually rot the silk.

Don't rub with cake soap. It destroys elasticity. With Lux there's no rubbing. Even stubborn spots come out perfectly if you gently press in a few dry Lux diamonds.

Wash this 2-minute way:
1. 1 teaspoon of Lux diamonds.
2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze suds through stockings, rinse well. Remember, anything safe in water is just as safe in Lux.

Try Lux FREE. Try this wonderful care for your stockings, at our expense. Just send us your name and address, and by return mail you will receive a full-sized package of Lux free. Write today to Lever Brothers Co., Dept. XF-2, Cambridge, Mass.

LUX for stockings — 2 minutes a day keeps them like new

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Movie Players Find All Talk Not on Screen So They Change Numbers

BY HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9.

After collecting stars' telephone numbers for nine years I'm in a position to know how fleeting they are.

Even with the confidential listings, some of the film people have to change their numbers almost once a month. Salesmen are the chief reason, but there are others more amusing.

Marlene Dietrich, for instance, was swamped by calls after her husband told New York interviewers she is a past-mistress at cooking cabbage kuchen, German pancakes and soup. Everybody in Hollywood who knew or could find the star's number gleefully leaped to the phone. She had to get a new listing.

Marlene Dietrich

Clara Bow changed hers once a month, mainly because of newspapermen.

A few of the stars take extraordinary precautions to keep their numbers secret. The only person on the MGM lot who knows where to get Ramon Novarro is a girl on the studio switchboard. Over at RKO Bill Le Baron is the sole confidant of Richard Dix, that is when Rich is between pictures. At other times he lives in a Beverly Hills apartment hotel.

Dolores Del Rio had to make a change because of weekly calls from an amorous fan in Paris. Bill Boyd had a number easily confused with that of a Japanese nursery. Oriental voices constantly assailed him with fluent Japanese. He has a new number now.

Perhaps Ed Sedgwick was less lucky, also lost a night's sleep after Hopalong Ike Cook printed his number and advised anyone who wanted to get in touch with Lew to call at 4 a. m. A well-known producer of travel films introduces a new fad. Somehow he has managed to pick his own number. You call him by dialing the letters of his name.

And of course there's the actor who had a phone number, but nobody called him so he changed it anyway.

LET HIM STARVE

It happened at a Hollywood party. They were discussing the number of famous people who now are down and out.

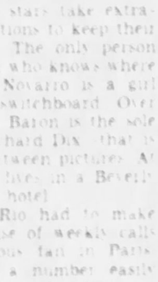
"Yes," remarked a scenarist, "I understand the man who made talking pictures possible is living in poverty in France."

"Great," snapped a newcomer, "let him starve."

It was Jack Gilbert.

LATEST GOSSIP

United Artists leads Hollywood with the record of changing only one title this year. Then, of course, there was the Warner Brothers railroad picture which began as "Steel Highway" and ended up as "Other Men's Women." Tom Mix says he will stay in pictures instead of going back with the circus next year. Lupe Velez that girl is always copy has starved away six pounds. That makes her weigh 110. With her back to you and in that red dress trimmed with white fur, Zoe Akins looks just like Santa Claus. Talk of fertile acres. Ginger Rogers, Jack Oakie, Buddy Rogers and Stanley Smith all were born within a radius of 15 miles in Missouri.



Ginger Rogers

WHAT DID HE MEAN?

Lucille Gleason reports the prize left-handed compliment.

Called for a test on "Girls About Town," she rushed into her makeup in 15 minutes.

One of the electricians observed her admiringly.

"You know," he said, "I watched Lilyan Tashman take an hour and a half to make up this morning, and you look just as good as she did—all things considered."

Plays, Players and By-Play

BY WILLIAM J. LEWIS

September 21 marks the time and X marks excuse please the Alvin the spot when and where the hitherto-termed legitimate season will rush forward and make its bow to Pittsburgh. One week later the Nixon will second the motion to make the primary unanimous. As we mentioned casually but earnestly here yesterday, Lenore Ulric will give us the first view of the newest John Emerson-Anita Loos specimen of dramaturgy, called "The Social Register." It will be the Nixon opener, September 28, a fact we didn't know till now. George M. Young, new manager of the Alvin, will open his house with "Three Little Girls," musical comedy.

Small Timer says that his wife's name is Birdie, and that there are times when he does think she is a little cuckoo.

Fred Stone was asked if he ever intended to revive "The Wizard of Oz" and he replied that it couldn't be done because his old partner, Dave Montgomery (the Tin Woodman) is gone and because it couldn't compare with the big musical shows that are put on today. As a comparison with the present, Stone says its production cost $30,000, with the further comment that's the cost of your finale of the first act today."

* * *

Small Timer says there is a crying need for a taxicab brake that doesn't.

Ann Nichols, playwright who became producer because nobody else would stage her "Abie's Irish Rose," is to resume producing activities after a two-year lapse with a play called "Mr. Funny Man," by Eugene Gibson.

Small Timer says now is the time for the silver dollar to come back, so that a guy with a couple of bucks can feel that he possesses "heavy money."

A gallon of water, always cold • Always handy, yet never in the way • Easy to fill . . . easy to clean • That's the Norge Watervoir.

• Anyone who buys a Norge Electric Refrigerator may have a Watervoir at small extra cost . . . anyone who already has a Norge may have one installed. It's characteristic of Norge convenience, this Watervoir . . . typical of the many comforts that a Norge will bring to your home.

We Don't Advise Anyone to Choose NORGE For Its Low Price

• Because we know that through the long years that you will enjoy Norge's dependable and low cost performance, its convenient size and arrangement and its simple beauty, you'll forget all about what you paid for it. Price is the least important reason for choosing Norge.

The Famous Rollator compressor Exclusive with Norge

• The reason for Norge's low price lies in the simplicity of its mechanism . . . the famous Rollator with only three moving parts. It's just a roller slowly revolving in a permanent bath of protective oil, where there is actually no metal to metal contact . . . so well designed and so well made that it actually is almost everlasting.

Newman was an eye witness of many exciting scenes attending the abdication of King Alphonso. Berlin was in a turmoil while Newman was there, and some of the great changes that have taken place in the German capital were photographed.

Horse Race In Metro News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The overwhelming victory of Mrs. Payne Whitney's great 3-year-old Twenty Grand, over Sun Beau and Sir Ashley at Saratoga, is one of the thrilling subjects in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn and other theaters. There are remarkable closeups of the most exciting scenes of the race, and of Mrs. Whitney, as her wonder horse easily draws away from his rivals and finishes by eight lengths over Sun Beau.

Maj. Doolittle's remarkable feat of breakfasting on the Pacific Coast and dining on the Atlantic is interestingly pictured and described by the Globe Trotter. Making a new record of 11 hours from coast to coast, the intrepid flier is shown dashing toward the field at Newark. With utmost modesty Maj. Doolittle speaks of his record-breaking trip.

POLLY MORAN IN NEWS

Polly Moran, famous laugh-maker of the movies, gives staid Washingtonians an earful upon her arrival there by singing "California, Here I Come" on the steps of the Capitol. She is welcomed by Vice President Curtis, with whom she exchanges some wisecracks.

The first heat of the Harmsworth Cup races at Detroit shows Miss England II, driven by Kaye Don, winning and traveling at the amazing speed of 110 miles an hour before an accident put her permanently out of the race. More than 400,000 spectators gaze with astonishment at her phenomenal exhibition.

AN ICY SWIM

Racing for $10,000 prize, 179 swimmers plunge into the icy waters of Lake Ontario in the Toronto classic. Only three are able to finish, and George Young, the Canadian swimmer, wins. He tells of his daring dash to Metrotone.

Francis Ouimet, the 38-year-old Boston star, is once again national amateur golf champion, a title which he held 17 years ago. He plays the most brilliant game of his career in his final battle with Jack Westland at Chicago to win handily.

EAST BOROUGHS DISTRICT NEWS

11 IN FIGHT FOR 4 EAST PITTSBURGH COUNCIL SEATS

Wilmerding to Decide Patton's Case

BURGESS' VETO ON MERGER MAY FAIL

Council May Attempt Action; Too Few Signers To Plea, Official Asserts

Wilmerding Borough Council was to dispose of the Patton annexation ordinance tonight, following its veto by Burgess R. W. Bishop. Sponsors of the measure may attempt to pass it over the Burgess' veto by a vote of five to two, as required by law.

Burgess Bishop returned the ordinance to Council last week with a letter explaining his stand. He said:

"After careful consideration, I find it necessary for me to veto this ordinance as the petition for annexation has not been signed by the majority of over 50 per cent of the property owners of this piece of property to be annexed to the borough of Wilmerding. As this is quite a watershed we should have either counts or state aid in taking care of the sewerage.

"Also if this should be annexed to the borough the entire expense of the sewerage would have to be paid by the borough of Wilmerding.

"Middle avenue should be improved per the $180,000 bond issue and the sewerage from the creek to Shaw avenue should be completed before considering any further improvement with the fund of the said bond issue."

FALK SCHOOL DISCARDS OLD METHODS

'Do What You Want to Do' System to Be Adopted At Elementary Institution

Do what you want to do. That, with qualifications, is the motto of the new Fanny Edel Falk Elementary School of the University of Pittsburgh, which will occupy its ultra sicentific school building expected to be completed early in October in University drive near Center avenue.

Old fashion ideas of child training are being discarded and new scientific methods will be applied to the 150 exceptional children enrolled at the school which at present is housed in temporary quarters in the Stephen's House.

TALENTS STUDIED

The enrollment has been made up of children between the ages of 3 and 10 who show some unusual talent. As the child displays a learning toward one particular activity or subject, it is the plan of the school staff to develop him in that particular trend. This is known to educators as the Dalton Plan of Self Promotion, according to Dr. Marion P. Chisholm, principal.

Everything is not being left to methods either, the school staff points out. Every feature of the new $250,000 school house which is a far cry from the little red school house has been placed in the building for a purpose, to build strong minds and bodies.

MODERN EQUIPMENT

All window glass in the building is of the type that permits the healthful ultra violet rays of the sun to penetrate into the classrooms. Also there will be a solarium on the roof of the building.

Mrs. Marjorie Falk Levy and her brother Leon Falk, Jr. donated the school building in memory of their mother.

Going Abroad

MISS GERALDINE ALTER

Miss Alter and her mother, Mrs. David Alter, of Bennington avenue, are on their way to Europe, where Miss Alter will attend school at Lausanne and her mother will attend sessions of the disarmament conference.

HOT CAMPAIGNS PUSHED FOR MANY JOBS

Four Places to Be Filled In Turtle Creek; Forest Hills Interest Keen, Too

East Pittsburgh faces an unusually hectic battle for the local political offices this year. The regular Republicans, under the leadership of Paul Oriss, have opened headquarters at Beech street and Braddock avenue, where Joseph G. Armstrong placards predominate.

The councilmanic fight will be especially bitter with 11 candidates striving for four offices. In the First Ward Clare Flascher, incumbent, is opposed by Generoso Martinelli and L. M. Varney.

In the Second Ward John Ference, incumbent, is opposed by Martin A. Daugherty and Beldy Kurtz. In the Third with Amos Strittmatter and Nathan Beck seeking re-election, Gus Katsilas, Joe Wise and Louis Sedler are seeking places.

CONSTABLE FIGHT

John F. Pavlik, present First Ward constable is opposed for re-election by William Coles. In the Second Ward William Boyle, incumbent, is arranged against Elmer Simon. In the Third Ward, where the office is at present held by G. N. Cargo, other office-seekers are Sam Whitman and Dave Bennett.

Another hot race is forecast in the school board balloting where Jacob Chambers and Bruce Yearsley, incumbents, are opposed by Joseph Campbell.

Squire Michael T. Gorham, candidate for re-election to that office, will meet opposition at the polls in the candidacies of Simon O'Rourke and P. J. Sharkey.

The present auditor, Jennie Ferry, will be opposed by P. J. Scally.

TURTLE CREEK FIGHT

Turtle Creek is probably less encumbered by factions than any town of its size in Allegheny County. However, enough persons are seeking office in the valley borough to make the fight an interesting one.

Four Council seats are to be filled and nine Turtle Creek residents are seeking them. In the First Ward, with the incumbent Councilman withdrawn from the race, four are campaigning for the vacated place. They are Frank A. Ament, W. J. Black, A. H. Winkler and R. J. Hawley.

In the Second Ward, H. C. Davis, incumbent, is opposed by George Phippps. In the Third Ward, William Cunningham and A. W. Brown, incumbent Councilmen, are opposing Fred Kindler.

O. J. Muller, William Hensell and Russell Brown, incumbents, are opposed in the First, Second and Third wards, respectively, by Mike Nair, Nicholas Testi, M. L. Eastep and James R. Stead. Dan Muir, Elmer Chambers and Joseph Sauter.

In the Auditor race, T. W. Linhart, incumbent, is opposed by Harry Tret and J. O. Kirkpatrick.

Thomas J. Little and S. M. Cunningham, School Board incumbents, are opposed for re-election to that body by William A. Young, M. E. Davis and Harry Sleightholm.

FOREST HILLS RACE

Forest Hills is displaying keen interest in the coming primary.

Republican candidates for the various offices are: For three Council seats, R. N. Critchlow, T. A. McDowell, H. H. Clummer, Frank Keller, Howard Eller and J. Tittel.

School Directors, Frank Wentworth, James Beswick, T. McCullum and B. Painter.

Justice of the Peace, Charles Towle, Linn Mott and Oscar Wittenberg.

Constable, Charles A. Lavish, Harry A. Richards, George Reid and Bertrand Bechtel.

Wyoming to Curb Killing of Elks

CHEYENNE, Wyo., 1931 — Wyoming is going to keep a close check on elk killed in the Jackson Hole country this fall. Check camps are to be established at "entry" points and as the hunters enter the region their names will be taken and when they return with elk coupons will be required from their hunting licenses to prevent their entering the region and killing elk a second time. Stockmen believe that the checking system will prevent indiscriminate hunters from killing cattle as well as keep a check on the elk.

MEXICO CITY, 1931 — The Mexican government is considering a proposal to increase property taxes and also a higher income tax. Short Story -:- Betty Was Modest

By LOUISE PEPLE ARMSTRONG

If ever two young people seemed headed for matrimony it was Betty Deering and David Leigh.

"They're a perfect couple," I told my Uncle Daniel, as I fetched in supper and put it on the table before him.

Uncle Dan had brought me up since childhood, when both my parents had died, leaving me alone in the world except for him. He was a confirmed bachelor, and though I'd always suspected a thwarted love affair had kept him one, it had not soured his disposition. He was a lively, jolly soul, though he had a gruff manner that didn't fool me in the least.

It's time you got a beau of your own, Miss," observed Uncle Dan now, as he tied a linen napkin about his neck and picked up a fork. "You admire David yourself. Pride. Why don't you step in and take him away from Betty? She's a vain, shallow piece."

Why, Uncle Dan," I gasped, how could you? I love playing a sneaky trick like that on my best friend." Besides," I added vexed with myself for blushing, "I don't care about David Leigh."

Then what were the two of you doing last night sitting by the fire with your heads together?" demanded Uncle Dan.

Oh, he was going over a case," I explained. "He rather enjoyed it, he said, and David says my suggestions are helpful."

Interested in the law, eh?" observed my Uncle Stephen. "Time you'd deliver me from a woman with brains." Then you're helpless," he added incidentally, "letting that empty-headed child walk away with the best fellow in town."

You needn't be timid because we're around, running your old house."

Uncle got up with a sober look on his round old face and came over to give me a beat hug. "You and little Sprite. You know."

Then stop talking nonsense," I advised sharply.

But what he said hurt. At first it was just a little aching hurt, but it grew and grew, and presently I realized what was the matter. I did love David Leigh. I didn't want him to marry Betty.

Betty called me up that afternoon very excited.

David's going to take us both to the dance on Poplar Hill," she said. "Be ready by 9 and we'll drive by. I'm so happy!"

About going to a dance on Poplar Hill? I growled. "Probably be just a lot of university students running around wild. Maybe Betty and David would have a better time to stay here anyway."

But of course we want to go," Pixie Betty declared.

Then we dressed up and looked and I helped them. "Please don't keep them waiting for I anything," admonished Uncle more than hourly as he strode from the front door. I don't care to know what's on."

He paced the floor and at three in the front part of the moon hung over the brow of the hill and the air was clear and cold—some. The road would be sleek and smooth, mused I, for the Poplar Hill Club perched on the outskirts. I ought to have enjoyed the ride but I didn't. Mad I knew I wasn't going to enjoy the evening either.

Pixie Phillips met me at the door of the clubhouse and insisted that I give him the first dance. Just as I feared I was taken over by the best looking fellow present. He was one of the oldest boasters, but after he had rescued me. He'd been drinking a little, but I didn't let myself mind, and I began to think he was a nice boy. He was a bit conceited and spoke a bit thoughtlessly and abruptly. But he was too much to be made love to. He was taught by a slightly later, older graduate. "Come into my den," I invited, and we went.

And there I found David looking at the mantelpiece.

Where's Betty?" I asked in consternation.

In there, cutting with a chap from New York. He's all keyed up over his original gimmick. Beat you already."

I seemed an age before the dance ended. Betty flatly refused to leave until the orchestra stopped on playing another "one." At last we packed back to the car. Betty declared she drive.

"Take the inside track," David said rather too emphatically.

Thanks, but I know how to drive a car," Betty told him.

She stepped on the gas and we were off with a roar. Do I remember the ride? Do I remember my name? Like a thief toward morning, I opened my eyes. Nobody had expected to meet anybody coming up that lane. Nobody had been expecting that Jake Campbell would have been coming up the lane. I heard Betty's voice, high with the wheel and I heard David's voice. He said I from somewhere. We were on the left side of the road. With a perfect of [illegible] we [illegible]

LINWOOD SEEKS LOCAL GRID LAURELS

East End Eleven to Make Strong Bid for Conference Football Championship

By TOM BIRKS

Now that the thud of the pigskin is replacing the crack of the horsehide on the local sandlots, fans following the leading independent clubs on the gridiron are looking for a banner season, since it has been stated that a host of former college stars will be doing their stuff on the big local clubs.

The formation of the Western Pennsylvania Independent Football Conference in the offices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph last evening again assures the football followers of a high class schedule of games and as usual the East End will have its share of the major attractions.

WANTS HIGH PLACE

When the Linwood club of the East End threw its hat in the independent field, it was the signal for the other big clubs to come out in the open with pre-season statements. Linwood is fighting for a berth in the football conference and wants to be rated on a par with the Burns, of New Kensington, West View, the Majestics, McKeesport Olympics and the East Pittsburgh Firemen.

As yet a large smoke screen is covering the activities of the East Pittsburgh and McKeesport clubs. Last season Joe Wambaugh handled the affairs of the firemen but the club had a poor year, and this was largely attributed to poor management.

This season it has been announced that the East Pittsburgh Firemen will control the club and place it on a sound financial and playing basis.

PLENTY OF MATERIAL

However, while the other clubs are loudly proclaiming the stars they have signed, East Pittsburgh has not given out any playing list, but there is a possibility that if the Firemen are keen to have a winner, plenty of material will be on hand.

This season Peter McGlashan will manage the club. It was stated that Tom Connelly and Abbie Brown will apply their efforts in the managerial end, but this seems to be out. Conley has had lots of "experience," and it takes experience to compete with the independent managers in this neck of the woods.

McKeesport is faced with a peculiar situation this season on the independent gridiron. At the conclusion of the conference games last season, Freddy Iverson, manager for many years of the famous Olympics, decided that he was quitting the independent ranks. This statement was not taken seriously, but when football gossip started the rounds, Iverson was silent, and again stated that he was through.

McKEESPORT PLANS

This was followed by news from the Tube City intimating that Bull Boser, for many years star lineman on the club, had taken over the Olympics and that Sossa Reed would coach the outfit.

Then the Olympics announced that future games would be played at Olympia Park out Boston way. Then Jim Sullivan, brother of Bill, who for years had coached the Olympics, and now head coach at McKeesport High School, organized a new club with home grounds at Rainbow Gardens, probably the best spot in the district, lined up plenty of talent, and together with the Boser team applied for membership in the conference.

Sullivan stated that Iverson had given him the Olympic franchise and that he would have one of the finest clubs ever to represent the Tube City on the gridiron. Sullivan raided the ranks of the Irwin Scholastics during the past week and landed four of Bill Schultze's outstanding players. Boser claims that the Olympic Park club is all set for the season with most all of last year's players back with him.

ANDY ZOLTAC . . . . WITH M'KEESPORT ELEVEN LAST YEAR

Zoltac, crashing fullback and one of the outstanding ball carriers in the Independent football conference, is expected to play this year with the East Pittsburgh Firemen.

Three Clubs in Fight For West Penn Loop Championship

Though the season is on the wane, fans in the East End part of the city are certainly watching a great fight for the second half championship of the West Penn League.

Linwood, Reliance Life and the Marty Griffins are battling hard to meet the Homestead Aces in the post season playoffs. At the present time it seems as if Linwood is going to be the club to meet the famous club piloted by Jack Fertig, unless St. Joachim's and the Reliance team both beat Linwood in the coming scheduled games.

Linwood have only lost one game and incidentally it was St. Joachim's that turned that trick. Reliance and Linwood got all tangled up in the game last week. Linwood went to Homestead Playgrounds and Reliance went to Langley Field. And nobody seems to be at fault. Meanwhile Linwood is going through with the rest of the schedule so that the curtain can be rung down.

Obtaining playing fields is soon going to be a problem, with football practice sessions being held on all the local lots.

Then East End fans are having the Commercial-Industrial series all to themselves for the playoffs. The first game found Reliance defeating Rieck's by a 2-to-0 score at Magee Field, with one of the largest crowds of the season on hand. Bill Gormley turned in a no-hit, no-run game as one of the season's classics. It was good to see Gormley win this battle, besting Eddie Laboon in a good effort. Laboon and Gormley are two of the best fellows in the game today, taking the bumps that come along without a moan.

Then the East End fans have the Steel City League battle to get enthused over. The East End Cardinals, playing from the Homewood Playgrounds, find themselves with Steve Davis batting for the title in this season's race.

Homestead Clear Of Contagious Diseases

Homestead had a clean bill of health during the past week, with no contagious disease case reported to the health officers for the first time in several years. No homes were quarantined during the week, the health report stated. Reason for relatively few contagious cases in the borough during the past summer has been attributed by the health officers to the fact that few large public gatherings were held.

A Woman Sent a Vigorous Protest to a Large Broadcasting Concern and Complained That Her Bed Springs Were Reproducing Their Programs

A Parisian Claims He Set not Only Bridge Church Services on Sunday Mornings but Also the Smell of Flowers Around the Altar in the Distant Church

HAVE you ever heard about objects that "pick up" radio programs and broadcast them clearly? Such weird antics of the radio are going on here and there all over the world and in some localities they are exceptionally varied and uncanny.

A few of the oddities on record include iron stoves and radiators that talk; chicken-wire or tennis-court fences that give market reports, and sink-drains that reproduce melodious symphonies.

To radio engineers these phenomena are not mysterious but the average layman cannot help but be mystified by them. None need be any longer, however, for an enlightening explanation of radio's peculiarities is to be found in an unusual article in next Sunday's American Weekly. Be sure to read it!

'ALL FOR LOVE'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

EVE. JILL.

All for Love—and the Girl Well-dressed

Eve sat in mystic rites before the mirror—ABOVE the mirror—the same as the modern Jill she adorned herself silently, in devout absorption for her Adam, even as Jill does for her Jack. She had not the wherewithal to elaborate upon her darling self—dallying to Adam though perhaps a bit too wild to [illegible] as Jill has—but I opine that she took [illegible] as a mi[illegible] moment.

Her mirror was an Eden pool—reflecting the tiger-lilies as well as her primitive little face. Her skirt was rustling [illegible] grass, and it was starred with flowers. And that with the naming is the complete description of her clothes. No satin slippers and gossamer stockings to enhance her feet and legs. No Lugenie chapeau to tickle a lover's ear and fancy with its feminine ostrich feather. No ribbons, no lace, no powder, no lip and cheek paint—though it took her daughters only a few centuries to Greece and Egypt to find out about the paint and powder; no scissors nor French hair-artiste. But plenty of flowers, for wrists and bosom and hair.

And who knows, and we like to believe it, a fabled natural beauty of her own. And I venture that that long, wild hair, unpermanented, was done over a dozen times before she sighed, pressed it again with anxious finger-tips, took another earnest look, and went demurely forth to meet her beau, 'Sister Adam.

Another difference—she had no competition, no mincing rival to "dress against." All Eden was hers to plunder for her glorification, and to shine in, all alone. She set the fashion, was Queen of it, and changed it as she liked. Though her material was limited. How Eve's little heart would have bump-bumped, at the sight of a few yards of flowered cotton or chiffon, a pair of silk stockings, of brocaded sandals, and a pair of beads!

Husband Jack told me—my friend Jill's Jack—with a hush in his voice, that he had stood, unseen in the doorway of his wife's sanctum, and contemplated in awe, the lost, rapt look of his Jill at her dressing-table. And had marveled to see how long she could look at the image of herself, how that she moved a ripple of hair the eighth of an inch and studied it thus so long that his Jack's foot went to sleep where he stood.

And Jill laughed, and said, "ALL FOR LOVE, dear, which with me, is the same as saying, for YOU!"

—NELL BRINKLEY.

ALFALFA BILL 'DOLLAR BILL'

OKLAHOMA CITY, [illegible] (AP)—Alfalfa Bill Murray, governor of Oklahoma, has a new nickname, too.

He has been "Dollar Bill" to Oklahoma oil producers ever since he called out the state's militia to enforce an order that all flush oil pools stay closed until the price of crude oil reaches $1 a barrel.

His title to the nickname was confirmed just 19 days later, when the first of the major oil buying companies, the Phillips Petroleum Company, agreed to meet his price. Gov. Murray refused to withdraw his shut-down order until all major companies agree to purchase oil at $1 a barrel.

Even before this offer was made Dollar Bill had proposed a plan for making the $1-a-barrel minimum permanent through the restoration of oil pools before the ban should be lifted.

Thrilling New Story Tells of Soldiers' Hardships Near End of War

CHAPTER I.

What is still left of Number 1 Platoon is quartered in a stretch of battered trench behind the line, and most of them are dozing.

"Funny sort of shell . . ." says Jupp suddenly.

"What d' you mean?'" asks Ferdinand and Kosole, sitting up.

"Use your ears!'" answers Jupp.

Kosole puts a hand to his ear and listens. We also listen into the darkness. But there is nothing audible beyond the dull rumble of gunfire and the high piping of the shells. From the right sounds the rattle of machine guns and now and then a cry. But all these we have known some years now; there is nothing new in that to make a new song about.

Kosole looks at Jupp suspiciously.

"It's stopped now, of course," says Jupp, by way of defending himself.

Kosole looks him over once more, appraisingly. Jupp remains unperturbed, and he turns away, muttering. "It's the rumble in your own hungry insides, that's all your shells are. Best thing you can do is get an eyeful of sleep." He fixes up a sort of earthen headrest and stretches out, disposing himself cautiously so that his boots shall not slip down into the water. "Lord, and there's the missus and all the comforts of home!" he murmurs, his eyes already closed.

"Somebody else with her by now, I dare say," retorts Jupp, out of his corner.

Kosole opens one eye and gives him a hard look. For a moment it seems as if he means to get up again. "Don't you be too funny, you poor fish!" And he is snoring already.

SUPERIORITY COMPLEX

Jupp signs to me to crawl over to him. I step across Adolf Bethke's legs and sit down beside him. With a sidelong glance at the snoring figure, he says sourly, "The likes of that don't even know what education is."

Jupp was a clerk in a solicitor's office before the war. And though he has been soldiering three years now, he still feels himself superior and in most curious wise sets great store on education out here at the front. What that means exactly, he does not know himself, of course; but more than all else that he ever heard tell of in the days gone by, the word "Education" has stayed with him, and to that he clings, as if it were a plank in the sea, that he shall not go under. Everybody has something of the sort: this one a wife, another his business, a third his boots. Valentin Laber his schnapps and Tjaden the hope of tasting broad beans and bacon once more.

On the other hand, nothing so irritates Kosole as that very word, Education. He always connects it some way or another with the idea of high collars, and for him that is enough. Even now it has its effect. Without interrupting his sleep, "Confounded pen-pusher!" says he gruffly.

Jupp shakes his head resigned and pitying. We sit on in silence a while, side by side, to warm ourselves. The night is wet and cold; clouds are driving overhead and it rains off and on. Then we take up the waterproof on which we are sitting and while the rain lasts hang it over our heads.

PLEASANT THOUGHTS

Along the sky line are the flashes of gunfire. One feels that over there must be a region a little less cold; it looks so cozy. Like gaily colored and silver flowers the flares spring up above the lightning flashes of the artillery. Big and red, the moon swims in the wet air above the ruins of a farm.

"Think we're going home?" whispered Jupp.

I shrug my shoulders. "The rumor is —"

Jupp sighs aloud. "A warm room and a sofa, and going out of nights—can you picture it still?"

"I tried on my civvies last time I was on leave," I say meditatively, "but they're ever so much too small for me now. I'll have to get new things." How marvelous that all sounds here—civvies, a sofa, the evening—but it brings strange thoughts—like black coffee, when sometimes it tastes too much of the tin and rust of the dixie, and one coughs it up again, hot and choking.

Jupp is picking his nose absently. "Shop windows and cafes—and women—oh, boy!" murmurs Jupp.

"Ach, man, you just be thankful you're back here out of the muck for a bit," say I, and blow into my frozen hands.

"That's true." Jupp draws the waterproof up over his thin, bent shoulders. "What'll you do when you get out of this?"

I laugh. "I? I'll have to go back to school again, I suppose. Willy and Albert and I—and even Ludwig over there, too." I say, pointing back to where some one is lying before a dug-out entrance, under two great-coats.

MANY SOLDIERS DIE

"Good heavens! But you won't do that, surely?" exclaims Jupp.

"I don't know. Probably have to." I reply, and feel furious, without knowing why.

There is a movement under the great coats. A pale, thin face lifts up and groans softly. It is my schoolmate, Lieut. Ludwig Breyer, our platoon commander. He has had diarrhea for weeks—it is dysentery, of course, but he does not want to go back into the hospital. He would sooner stay with us, for we are all waiting now in hopes of peace; then we shall be able to take him back with us at once. The hospitals are all full to overflowing; no one is properly looked over there, and once a man lies down on it, he is only so much nearer to being dead. Men die all around one. It gets on a fellow's nerves, alone there among it all, and before he knows where he is, he has made another himself. Max Weil, our stretcher bearer, has given Breyer a sort of fluid

PINCHOT UTILITY WAR SCORED

REDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 10 (AP).—The twenty-fourth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Electric Association continued today with predictions before it that construction work in the electric industry during 1931 would be high.

Paul S. Clapp, of New York, managing director of the National Electric Light Association, told delegates that probably more than $600,000,000 would be spent by utilities during the year. He said the industry had maintained 97 per cent employment.

Attacks of Gov. Pinchot on utilities were scored in addresses by speakers who included John Spargo, Old Bennington, Vt., economist; A. B. Miller, of Harrisburg, managing director of the association, and Charles F. Oakes, of Allentown, district manager of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company.

RELIEF CANNING WORK RUSHED FOR NEEDY

Advisory Board to Meet; Plant Turns Out 3,200 Quarts of Fruit Butter

While the effort to prepare for feeding the hungry during the winter months by canning surplus fruits donated by various organizations was progressing today, letters were sent out announcing a meeting of the advisory committee in charge of the project. The meeting is to be held in the William Penn Hotel Monday noon.

Approximately 3,200 quarts of apple butter and pearh butter were turned out by the canning plant at 1455 Spring Garden avenue during the first 12 hours run. At present there is a need for sugar, although large quantities have been donated by Herman Koch of Charles Koch & Co.

Cinnamon, spices, etc., were donated yesterday by A. Siessman of Lutz and Schramm Company. Wood and glass containers, barrels and baskets also are required.

Yesterday 150 bushels of peaches and 150 bushels of apples were prepared for canning. Dr. Alexander Gibson and Attorney Harry I. Miller put to work 25 men from the Helping Hand Hotel under the supervision of C. I. Lewis. Women from 11 churches in Bellevue yesterday canned 20 bushels of peaches, four bushels of pears and one of crabapples.

HOLDS PERFECT HAND; LIVES

Peter Carl Ostronic, of 1613 Belhurst avenue, held a perfect pinochle hand—and lived to tell the tale. Peter, with two other pinochle enthusiasts, picked up his hand last night and stared. Among the 15 cards there were two aces, two kings, two queens, two jacks, two 10s and two 9s. Discarding three cards, he held the perfect hand.

He had read of men who couldn't stand the shock, and marveled that he did. His companions expressed delight at being lucky enough to witness such a hand, and everybody was happy. They were Lawrence Weidner and Charles Bagey, both of Shreaden.

JUDGE REVOKES POLL CHANGE

Judge James H. Gray, after making a trip of inspection to Penn Township, revoked an order of court made by him last month changing the polling place of the Fourth District of the township from the William Penn School, Rosedale, to the garage of Pat Young, in Verona Borough, and moved the polling place back to the school.

A petition had been presented asking the first change, stating that the owners of the polling place no longer desired to let it out for the voting. As soon as the court had granted the change, other voters of the district, who had not learned of the move in time to oppose it, came into court and said that not only was the polling place controlled by the school board, which had evidenced no desire to have the voting place taken away, but that several of the original petitioners were residents of the Second District of Penn Township.

After reviewing the papers Judge Gray went to the district and investigated the matter before restoring the poll to the school.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mexico just joined the League of Nations. Since we went broke we have never been invited in. If the South don't raise any cotton next year it will just be their luck to have the boll weevil change its diet and switch over to something else. With no cotton in the South next year they can devote all their time to politics instead of just two-thirds of it. Wilkins is bringing the Nautilus home to get a new tow rope. Yours, WILL.

Gar Wood Was Speedy to Beat Gun in Detroit

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Lot of international bad feeling because Gar Wood emerged seven seconds in a motor boat race.

England is so mad it has asked for another peace treaty. To prove that bad sportsmanship does not extend to all Americans, boats, the Staten Island ferry has adopted a slogan:

"No false starts. All passengers start together and finish together."

We don't see how Gar Wood beat the gun in Detroit.

Nobody ever beat one in Chicago or New York.

That's the trouble with amateur sport. Too much competition.

We like professional sport like boxing and wrestling, where the boys talk it over first and only the public is in ignorance.

However, as everybody is apologizing for Gar Wood we also fall into line. But Gar has all the worst of it. He still has to get that cup away from his brother.

PHILLIPS URGES CHARITY BY ALL

Councilman John M. Phillips, candidate to succeed himself, speaking at an Eleventh Ward Republican mass meeting last night in Peabody High School declared that while public works are needed to provide employment, practical neighborliness would go a long way toward relieving family distress brought by the business depression. He said:

"Let every one, as very many are doing, help his nearest needy neighbor first, then expand his helpful interest to a wider sphere. Thus each ward, city, county and state would take care of its own needy people to the limit of its ability and we might avoid any call upon the federal government for assistance that should be provided locally."

Phillips spoke last night also at a meeting of the Eighteenth Ward Colored Club in Krieger Hall, Sharon street, and the Serbian-Croatian Republican Club at South Twenty-sixth and Jane streets.

He is scheduled to speak tonight at a meeting of the Allied Boards of Trade in Taylor Allderdice High School; a gathering of Negro voters in Allegheny High School, Sherman avenue, North Side, and a Thirteenth Ward meeting in the Homewood Carnegie Library.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Lieut. S. S. Miller, attached to Aircraft Squadron V-3 aboard the U. S. S. Langley, narrowly escaped death when his parachute failed to open until he was within 75 feet of the ground after a 1,000-foot drop.

STONE, MARBLE WORKERS END STRIKE

School Board May Renew Attempt to Mediate With Electricians, Carpenters

Stone masons and marble workers have returned to work on a number of jobs where they had been on strike on instructions from their international union. It is understood these men again may be removed, however, should headquarters consider the strike justified.

About 300 men of the electricians, carpenters, bricklayers, tile setters and terrazzo workers' unions are still on strike. At present there are no negotiations on for settlement although it is believed the Board of Public Education may make a renewed attempt at arbitration.

Seventy-six school jobs are affected. At the Arnold School, outside the city, the electrical contractor has been replaced and the union men have returned to work.

The strike started in a dispute between the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local No. 5 and the Allegheny County Electrical Contractors' Association regarding the wage scale for foremen. Nonunion electricians were employed and six other trades struck in sympathy. General contractors then ordered the other trades to put back their men. When they refused they were locked out.

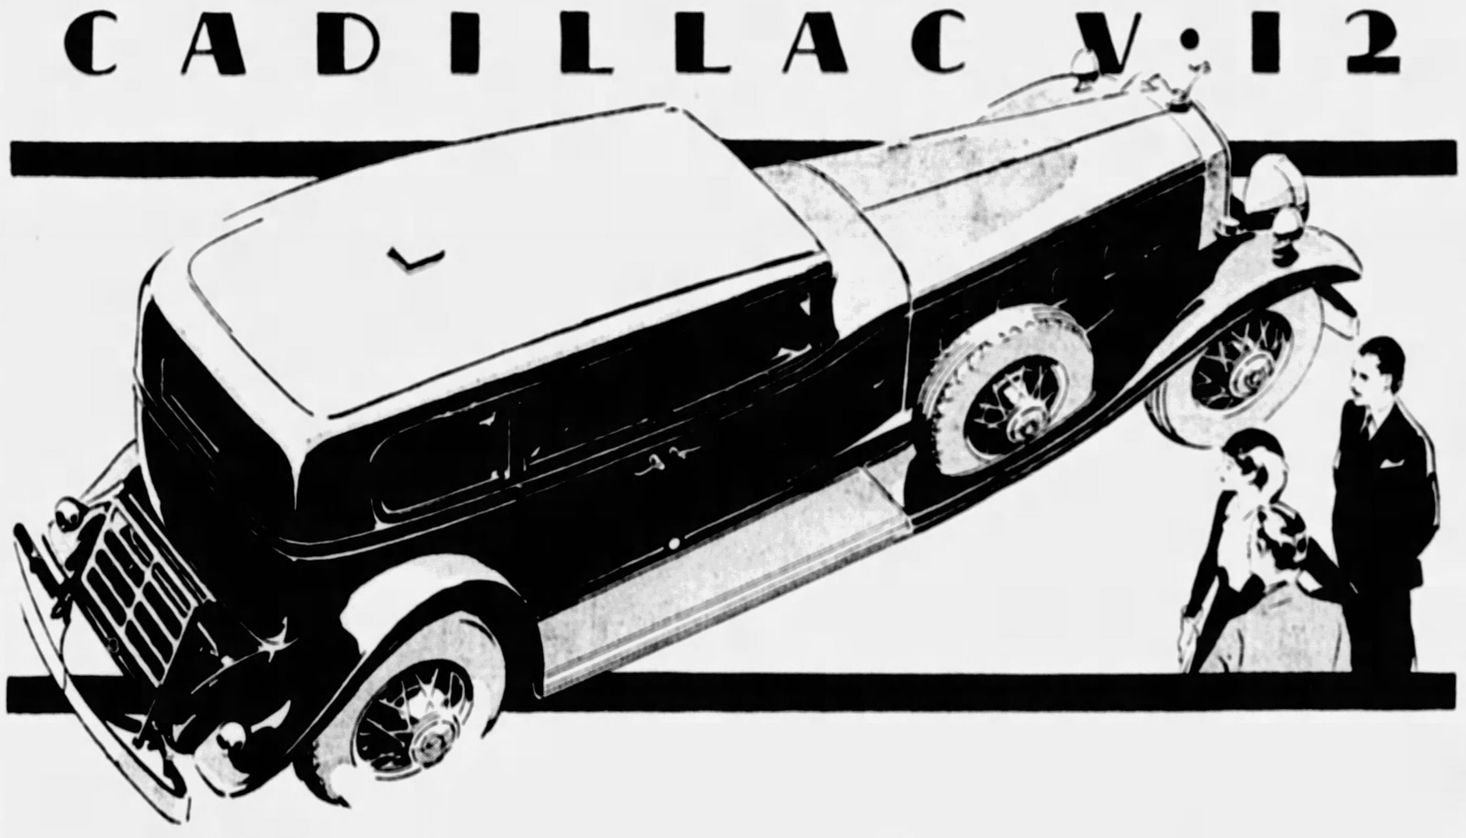
CADILLAC V-12



We promise a revelation when you first drive a Cadillac V-12

As the automotive industry advances, it becomes increasingly obvious that the foundation of motoring luxury is the engine itself.

Other units of the car, of course, must be designed and built to standards comparably high—but unless there is this basis of luxury in the engine, there can be no luxury in the car.

It is because its engine is so very fine that those who are driving the Cadillac V-12 are so generally outspoken in its praise.

It is a literal truth that they have never known such luxurious performance as they now enjoy—for, excepting the V-16 alone, there has never before been an engine like that of the Cadillac V-12.

To describe this car's performance is next to impossible—but to experience it, first-hand, is to get an impression you will never forget.

At every speed, the V-12 is almost completely silent. Even when you accelerate suddenly, you hear no laboring—sense no strain. You have a feeling that liquid power is taking hold of your car, and rushing you ahead with almost unbelievable swiftness.

And since the rest of the chassis and the body is engineered to the same exceptional degree of quietness, your ride becomes simply an effortless movement through space.

To be thus transported, almost without a hint of mechanical propulsion, is to enjoy a sense of power and luxury that never loses its thrill. In fact, V-12 owners drive their cars much farther, month after month, than they ever drove a motor car before.

We should like, extremely, to have you come in and drive a Cadillac V-12. Or, if you prefer, telephone—and a car will be sent to your home.

$3795 up f. o. b. Detroit

The V-12 seven-passenger Sedan, illustrated above, is priced at $4195, f. o. b. factory—with slight additional cost for the extra equipment.

Women Should Stick to Styles That Suit Them Best, Says Fay King

By FAY KING.

Never have women in crowds looked better.

Those who like short dresses and look best in them are in no hurry to change to long ones.

Those who look best in long ones adopt them.

One sees hats off the face and hats over the eye.

Some style is bound to be most becoming to certain figures and features. When that style prevails those who look best in it are the stars of the season. The rest by unfavorable comparison add to perfection of the few.

There isn't any reason why every woman should not stick to the style that suits her best.

Contrasting styles do not clash half so much as the style that becomes some and does not become others.

I need some advice about Marion, she said simply, but I knew that she was watching him warily.

If the wrinkled darling fears massage being doubtful as to the right movements she can buy a little patter and slap her face with it, first anointing the skin surface with a good muscle oil or cream. To make a henna paste combine pure powdered Egyptian henna with boiling water to form a fairly thick paste. Apply hot; let it remain 10 minutes and shampoo the hair. Gives red glints. Not for white hair.

Tight scalp? Rub it loose. Otherwise the hair won't grow as it should. It lives on the blood supply, so friction of the soft padding under the scalp fills it full of ginger. It isn't enough that hair should grow normally and not get thin; it should also be glossy and agreeable, the kind of hair that looks bouffant and stays put.

Girls with black eyes and raven hair can wear cerise, dull yellows, beige, old blue. If the skin is not sallow, black is a good selection. White is not for them as a general rule. Pastel shades aren't striking enough.

Keep in mind that powder is a barrier between the complexion and the elements—wind and sunlight. It also protects the skin from atmospheric dust. It should never be washed away but removed with a thin cleansing cream, after which one can have one's soapy facial tubbing. When applying powder don't be mean to your face and rub it in. Fluff on and pat.

You can get powder compacts and rouge compacts in all colors now. Sassy girls have them to match their frocks or pulses or both. Rouge pans should be changed frequently. Catches dust and rubs it into the pores.

PROTECT YOUR CHILD from the menace of dirty handkerchiefs

When school starts give them KLEENEX

disposable tissues

SCHOOL starts soon—start now to guard against colds and other epidemics!

One protection you can give your child is Kleenex disposable tissues instead of handkerchiefs.

Kleenex tissues are soft, dainty squares to use and destroy. Absolutely safe, sanitary. Compare the cleanly Kleenex way with the old-time handkerchief, which tests show may contain literally millions of germs!

Children particularly need Kleenex because they are so careless and because they contract nose and throat infections so readily. Supply your child today with Kleenex . . . teach him to use each tissue once and then destroy.

Children prefer Kleenex

Children prefer Kleenex, once they try it. Made of cellulose, it's softer than any handkerchief. And nearly twice as absorbent—thus preventing irritation. Each tissue that touches the face is fresh, clean, completely sanitary.

And with Kleenex there's never any trouble over lost or stained handkerchiefs. It costs even less than laundering alone.

DISEASE GERMS

Bacteriological tests show that handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain the following organisms: Staphylococci (pus germs), Streptococci, Pneumococci and Catarrhales.

Many uses

There's nothing like Kleenex for saving your time and temper a dozen times a day. For wiping spectacles; for dusting or polishing; for applying medicines; for minor bandages; for wiping razor blades . . . these are but a few of the many important uses for Kleenex. And don't forget that Kleenex is declared the safest, most efficient way of removing face creams by those experienced in skin care. Its superior absorbency is needed to remove all impurities from the pores. All drug, dry goods and department stores sell Kleenex.

KLEENEX disposable TISSUES

Dirty handkerchiefs are a menace to society!

Health and Prosperity

Live in the country, in fresh air and sunshine. Modern farming now offers you an opportunity for independence and a good livelihood. Modern machinery, motor cars and trucks, electricity, radios and telephones have brought the city with its markets and amusements close to the rural districts. PITT STRONG, OPTIMISTIC

PITT PANTHERS OF 1931 — FROM THIS SQUAD WILL COME HEROES OF THE BATTLES WITH ARMY, NOTRE DAME, CARNEGIE TECH AND NEBRASKA — LOOK 'EM OVER

The Panthers are considered bright.

To make the going all the harder in this final series of 1931 with the second flavette the Giants will meet the Giants in the latter's best form of the season. For the New Yorkers also have been stepping along at a sensational clip. They have won 21 of their last 31 games, starting the rush with a string of eight straight, and of their last 26 contests they have lost only six.

THERE WERE SOME who doubted that Heinie Meine would be of much use to the Pirates when he came back last spring, but as things have turned out the club would have lost one of the best pitchers in the league if Heinie had stayed in retirement. Yesterday's victory over the Robins which should have been a shutout was his fourth straight win and his seventeenth of the year. Nine of his wins have been scored against first division clubs. In four of his 12 defeats the Bucs failed to score behind him; in another they made only one tally and on three other occasions he was defeated by only one run, on one occasion losing after 13 innings while he deserved to win in nine. Everything considered, Meine has been one of the stars of the year.

Jack Kid Berg

Berg is a hard man to beat admittedly and must be conceded a chance to win anytime he starts regardless of the class of ranking of his opponent. This applies particularly to bouts over such an extended distance as 15 rounds, the scheduled route for tonight, as the Whitechapel Kid possesses remarkable stamina and is still going at full speed when the average for begins to tire.

KARL DAVIS, former graduate manager at Pitt, now athletic chief of Western Reserve, points to record attendance figures as proof of Cleveland's greatness as a sport center. On Labor Day the six races drew 75,000, a sandlot game for the city championship attracted 17,000 and the Indians-White Sox double-header was witnessed by 18,000. In 10 days the six races drew 370,000. Karl is convinced the fans there will turn out for football with equal enthusiasm as soon as they are given the real stuff, and he is hopeful that the day is not far distant when he will be able to give them that article. Western Reserve, which plays Pitt here on October 17, will start practice next Tuesday.

David L. McCahill, guiding spirit of the organization, was an ardent devotee of the fox hunting pastime long before it attained its present place in public interest and favor hereabouts, and it was largely through his efforts that the club became the interesting group of horsemen and horsewomen that it is today.

David L. McCahill

ANOTHER MCAHILL entry, a Gay Girl recently acquired from Mrs. Frances Burke Rodgers, who took in exchange the McCahill horse Cameo Gay Girl was Mrs. Rodgers' exhibit at many of the shows on the southern circuit last spring, and at Sewickley in June, and at the southern shows she carried off a number of ribbons. The show starting tomorrow has a special interest due to the anticipated presence of Gen. William D. Mitchell, former head of the United States Air Forces, who will be one of the judges. He maintains a stable at Middleburg, Va., and as one of the country's prominent horsemen will judge the hunters and jumpers. Pole ponies, saddle horses and ponies will be judged by Maj. L. L. Hubbard, U. S. Cavalry, and hunt horses by George R. McNees, of Greensburg, on whose farm the annual Western Pennsylvania Hunts meet will take place October 12.

It liquidated the Sino-Japanese War of 1894, in which young Japan utterly defeated China, and in addition to a large war indemnity took Korea and Formosa from her. SEEDED STARS WIN IN NATIONAL NET PLAY

Mrs. Kiser Leads in Women's Handicap Golf Tournament at Fox Chapel

PERRY VICTOR OVER CLIFF SUTTER

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP).—After two days of dizzy reversals of form the national tennis tournament at Forest Hills settled down and moved prosaically into the quarter-finals without a single upset.

The eight players who survived were naturals, even though a pair of them, Berkeley Bell of Dallas and Frank Bowden of New York City, were not seeded.

Completing the upper bracket with Bell and Bowden were Ellsworth Vines, the lazy-looking lad from Pasadena, and Frederick J. Perry, British Davis Cup star. Coming through in the lower half were Johnny Doeg of Newark, the defending champion, Frank Shields of New York, and the two Philadelphians, George Lott, Jr., and Johnny Van Ryn.

Shields, Davis Cup singles ace, had the closest scrape of the day. He was extended to the limit in subduing Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

Doeg had too much experience and stamina for Bryan Grant, Jr., of Atlanta, beating him 6-0, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1.

Clifford Sutter of New Orleans gave an erratic exhibition in losing to Perry, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

George Lott, Jr., continued to play brilliantly in turning back Gregory S. Mangin of Newark, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Van Ryn progressed at the expense of Christian Boussus, last of France's contenders, 7-5, 6-0, 6-4.

Vines advanced by trimming J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., 6-2, 6-3, 7-5. Bell triumphed over Robert Bryan of Chattanooga, 9-7, 7-5, 4-6, 7-5.

Bowden beat Claxton Lee Burwell of Charlotte, N. C., 7-5, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Berkimer Katlies To Cop Golf Title

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 10.—Three down and eight to play, Marshall A. Berkimer came back strong in the last eight holes of his championship match with J. H. McClung at the Butler Country Club to win the championship on the thirty-fifth hole. 3 and 1. Berkimer shot sensational golf on his last eight holes, while McClung's game cracked badly as Berkimer squared the match on the thirty-second.

McClung led at the end of the morning round 1 up and at the end of 27 holes was 3 up. Berkimer replaces S. W. Greer as the champion of the Butler Country Club.

The Highland Country Club team of Sam Parks, Jr., captain, Dick Bostick, Frank Nash, Dr. Joe E. Stanger, H. Sherman Parker, Jimmy Ramsay, Regis Wolff and Joe Royston, Jr., retained the Claude F. Ruth vase emblematic of the West Penn team championship in the final rounds staged at the Westmoreland Country Club yesterday when it scored a total of 25½ points, four and one-half more than were aggregated by the Oakmont team which retained the George J. Willock shield, runner-up trophy.

St. Clair, which had trailed Highland by a mere half point at the half-way mark, finished third with 16 points, and Fox Chapel was last with 9½.

numerical strength. It's the biggest the university ever has sent out here. Included in its makeup are a dozen lettermen, as many holdovers from last year and 24 sophomores, most of whom are accounted excellent prospects.

Nine letter men were lost from last year's team. These were Eddie Baker, Franklin Hood, Josh Williams, Bill Walmchus, Jack Kelly and Bucky Wagner, backs, and Tully Schultz, Cipri and Lewis, from the line.

LINEUP TENTATIVELY SET

The spring practice season, which waits as long as it has been in the past but quite a bit tougher, enabled the coaches to get a pretty fair line on the prospects, with the results that scrimmage was started the third day in camp and a first string lineup tentatively set. Coach Sutherland himself a great lineman and as fine a line developer as there is in the game, has been spending an exceptional amount of time on his right line. He says so himself. The results I think will warrant the expenditure of time and energy.

At the ends Capt. Eddie Hirshberg and Rip Collins are to get the first call. Their abilities are known, although Collins promises to be a much better ball player this year than he has been in the past. The reason he has the fight and pep. Hirshberg never will be a flashy end, but as long as he can take off inches he'll be a steady one.

Ted Dailey, a fighter and brainy enough for powerful offensive work but a whale of a defensive wing, and young Joe Skladany, who performed acceptably for the freshmen last year, will understudy the varsity.

MacMURDO AT TACKLE

Big Jim MacMurdo is a sure bet for his end job at tackle after a year misspent at end. The lowest Jim at a wing last year, more than at tackle. Now he's back where he belongs and if there is an all-American line prospect in the territory, it's the Pitt giant.

Jess Quatse, with his size and experience, goes at the other side of the line. He could be faster, but not much tougher. John Meriden, a Bellefonte product, weighing about 185 pounds, and the hefty John Valenti, 230, along with Paul Cuba, John Love and Frank Tiernan will do the relief work.

Hart Morris and Mike Milligan, last season's guard pair, are facing stern battles for their positions, but their speed and experience are standing them in good stead. If anything happens to either Hart or Mike, Tarleton Oaster, a 187-pound sophomore, Francis Siegel, a holdover, will be ready to take their places. Included, Charley Hartwig doesn't look eligible, but if he does he'll be the class of the guard ranks.

CENTER FIGHT KEEN

Daugherty and Joe Tormey are continuing their battle for the center job which began last year. Tormey is the equal of Daugherty on the defense and is fast improving his passing and offensive play. Daugherty, however, after a somewhat stormy career, has faith to go and has shown great class so far. However, with such a pair, the center worries are well taken care of, and if replacements are needed elsewhere on the line, one of the other may be converted into a tackle or a guard. The latter hardly is likely.

Pitt will sport the lightest backfield in the school's history. Jimmy Clark is to start again at fullback. Jimmy weighs 160 pounds on a wet day, and it has to be a pretty wet one, too. Johnny Lisch, the pile-driving West Virginian, is a much more valuable understudy. Howard, a valuable understudy. Howard Gollini, who played fullback in high school, retired on last year's frosh eleven and has been working out as a quarterback this year. He may be brought back to fullback need be.

MANY GOOD BACKS

There are a flock of good halfbacks available, led by the two veterans, Paul Sgutt, Bulldog Yerg, Tuz Mraz, Reggie Reed and Warren Heller. Jimmy Simms, former Kiski star, and Mike Sebastian, of Sharon, look as the most likely second string choices with Mel Brown, the Iowa speedboy with the burn shoulder that goes flooie every time he makes a tackle, Howard O'Dell, Dick Matson, Ben Dello, John McCurdy, Howard Roth and Elwin Heller complete the list. Simms, Sebastian, Matson and Brown, reading from left to right, will handle the lion's share of the reserve play.

Bon Hogan, of Meadville, a sophomore, Rocco Cuti and Zeke Alpert are the three scrapping it out for the quarterback job. Hogan has a slight edge, his weight making him a more valuable defensive man. The Pitt quarterback this year must back up the line and neither Alpert nor Cuti could do this well enough to suit Coach Sutherland.

Hogan and Alpert are expected well and are the best bookers on the squad. Cuti is a fair kicker and a fair passer. Alpert passes the best of the trio, but Hogan's width on the defense, along with a slight superiority in blocking, fits him for the position. He's a big lad who may come along.

That is the ball club. Coach Sutherland is proud of the boys, going a right noble job of it, too, and is keen to start with the. The schedule is a tough one, sprit Jim MacMurdo is out for, with teams of the caliber of Army, all that is in it and has done. Notre Dame, Tech and Nebraska are plenty test to satisfy the critics, to be mild, to say nothing of Iowa, squad aside, with Penn State and West Virginia.

plaster to eat so as to help him for a bit.

Jupp signs to me. "Listen! There it is again."

"What?"

"The shells. I was talking about before."

Kosole sits and yawns. He gets up, significantly examines his great fist, he looks askance at Jupp and says: "Well, my boy, if you're trying to pull our leg again, you'll soon be sending your bones home in a turnip sack."

We listen. The hiss and whistle of the invisible arching shells is interrupted by a queer hoarse, long-drawn sound, so strange and new that my flesh creeps.

"Gas shells!" shouts Willy, springing up.

Now we are all aware and listening intently.

RIFLE SHOT FAILS

Wessling points into the air. "There they are! Wild geese!"

Moving darkly against the drab gray of the clouds is a streak, a wedge, its point steering towards the moon. It cuts across its red disc. The black shadows are plainly visible, an angle of many wings, a column of squalling, strange, wild cries that loses itself in the distance.

"Off they go," growls Willy. "If only we could pull out like that! Two wings and away."

Heinrich Wessling follows the geese with his eyes. "Now for winter," says he slowly. Wessling is a farmer and understands these things.

Breyer, weak and wretched, leans against the parados and murmurs: "First time I ever saw that."

But Kosole has brightened up at once. He gets Wessling to explain the matter to him quickly once more, asking particularly whether wild geese are as fat as tame ones.

"More or less," says Wessling.

"My poor belly!" exclaims Kosole, his jaws working with excitement. "And fifteen, twenty, maybe, good roast dinners flying about there in the air!"

Again the whir of wings, straight above us, again the hoarse, throatily cry, swooping down into our hearts like a hawk; the lapping pulse of their wings, the urgent cries, gusts of the rising wind all united in one passionate, swift sense of freedom and life.

A shot rings out. Kosole lowers his rifle and peers hungrily into the sky. He has fired into the middle of the flight. Beside him stands Tjaden, ready, like a retriever, to dash out should a goose fall. But the flight passes on intact.

"Hard luck," says Bethke. "That might have been the first sensible shot in this whole war."

Kosole throws down his rifle in disgust. "If only a man had some short-cartridges!" He settles back into gloom, conjuring all the things that might have been. And as he sits he chews unconsciously.

"Yes," says Jupp, observing him, "with apple sauce and baked potatoes, what?"

Kosole looks at him poisonously. "You shut up, you penpusher!"

"You should have joined the air force," grins Jupp, "then you might have gone after them with a butterfly net."

"Bah!" answers Kosole finally, and settles down to sleep once more. And that is best. The rain becomes heavier. We sit back to back and drape our waterproof sheets over us. Like dark mounds of earth we squat there in our little bit of trench. Earth, uniform, and a little life underneath.

A harsh, whispering wakes me. "Forward! Forward!"

"Why, what's the matter?" I ask, drunken with sleep.

"We've to go up the line," growls Kosole, assembling things.

"But we've only just come here!" I say, mystified.

"Such damned rot," I hear Wessling say. "The bloody war's over, isn't it?"

"Up! Forward!" It is Heel himself, our company commander, driving us out. He is running impatiently down the trench. Ludwig Breyer is already on his feet. "There's nothing for it, we've got to go," says he resignedly, taking a few hand grenades.

Adolf Bethke looks at him. "You should stay here, Ludwig. You can't go up with your dysentery."

Breyer shakes his head.

SHATTERED HOPES

The scraping sound of bolts being tightened, a clatter of rifles, the sickly smell of death suddenly rising up again out of the earth. And we had hoped at last to have escaped it for ever!

The thought of Peace had sprung up before us like a rocket, and though indeed we did not yet believe or understand it, the bare hope had sufficed to change us more in the few minutes it took for the rumor to circulate than anything in 20 months before. Till now the years of war had succeeded each other, year laid upon year, one year of hopelessness treading fast upon another, and when a man reckoned the time, his amazement was almost as great to discover it had been so long as that it had been only so long. But now that it has become known that peace may come any day, every hour has gained in weight a thousandfold, every minute under fire seems harder and longer almost than the whole time before.

The wind miaows around the remains of the breastworks and clouds draw swiftly over the moon-light, constantly alternating with shadow. We march, close one behind another. Number 2 Platoon, shot to a mere handful of men, the whole company, has scarce the strength of a normal platoon, but this remnant is choice, thoroughly sifted. We have even three old-timers still from fourteen. Bethke, Wessling and Kosole, who know everything and often speak of the first months as though that were away back in the olden days of the gods and heroes.

Each man seeks out a corner, a hole for himself in the new position. There is nothing much doing. Flares, machine guns, rats. With a well-aimed shot Willy tosses one up and shoots it in two in midair with the cut from a spade.

SENSE DANGER

A few scattered shots fall. From the left sound distantly the explosion of hand grenades.

"Let's hope it stays quiet here," says Wessling.

"To get it in the neck now," Willy shakes his head.

"When a man's luck's out, he'll break his finger just pressing his nose," growls Valentin.

Ludwig lies down on his waterproof sheet. He could, as a matter of fact, have stayed behind. Weil gives him a couple of tabloids and Valentin tries to persuade him to have a tot of schnapps. We lie around and the time creeps on.

I start suddenly and lift my head. Bethke too. I see is sitting up. Even Tjaden is on the alert. The years-old instinct has reported something, none yet knows what, but certainly something strange is afoot. We raise our heads gingerly and listen, but our eyes narrowed to slits to penetrate the darkness. Everyone is awake, every sense is strained to the uttermost, every muscle leads to receive the unknown, oncoming thing that can mean only danger. The hand grenades scrape over the ground as Willy, our best bomb-thrower, seems himself forward. We lie close pressed to the ground like cats. Beside me I discover Ludwig Breyer. There is nothing of sickness in his tense features now. His is the same cold, deathly expression as everything here, the front-line face. A fierce tension has frozen it, so extraordinary is the impression that our subconsciousness has imparted to us long before our senses are able to identify it.

VISION PEACE

The fog moves and lifts. And suddenly I know what it is that has thrown us all into such a state of alarm. It has merely become still. Absolutely still.

Not a machine gun, not a shot, not an explosion, no shriek of shells, nothing, absolutely nothing, no shot, no cry. It is simply still, utterly still.

We looked at one another, we cannot understand it. This is the first time it has been so quiet since we have been at the Front. We sniff the air and try to figure what it can mean. Is gas creeping over? But the wind is not favorable, it would drive it off. Is an attack coming? But the very silence would have betrayed it already. What is it then? The bomb in my hand is moist. I am sweating so with excitement. One feels as if the nerves must snap five minutes. Ten minutes. A quarter of an hour now, calls Later. His voice sounds hollow in the fog as from a grave. Still nothing happens, no attack, no sudden, dark-looming, springing shadows.

Hands relax and clench again, softer. This is not to be borne. We are so accustomed to the noise of the Front that now, when the weight of it suddenly lifts from us, we feel as if we must burst, shoot upward like balloons.

Why," says Willy suddenly, "it's peace." It falls like a bomb.

Knees relax, movements become aimless and uncertain. Peace. We looked at one another, each incredulous. Peace? I let my hand grenades drop. Peace? In Bethke's eyes is an expression as if his whole face would break in pieces. Peace? Wessling stands motionless as a tree and when he turns his back on it and faces us he looks as if he meant to keep straight on home.

FIRING RESUMED

All at once, in the whirl of our excitement, we had hardly observed it, the silence is at an end, once more daily menacing comes the noise of gunfire and already from afar, like the bill of a woodpecker, sounds the knock-knocking of a machine gun. We grow calm and are almost glad to hear again the familiar, trusty noises of death.

It has been quiet all day. At night we have to relieve a little as so often before. But the fellows over yonder do not simply follow us, they attack. Before we are ready heavy shelling comes over and behind us the red fountains roar upward into the gloom. For the moment it is still quiet where we are. Willy and Tjaden light on a tin of meat and polish it off on the spot. The rest just lie there and wait. The many months have consumed them, so long as they cannot defend themselves they are almost indifferent.

Heel, our company commander, looks up. Has one everything, he asks through the din. Too little ammunition, shouts Bethke. Heel gives a shrug and passes Bethke a cigaret over his shoulder. Without looking around, Bethke nods. Have to make good with what you have, shouts Heel and springs into the next shell hole. He knows they will make good right enough. Any of these old hands would make as good a company commander as himself.

FORCED TO RETREAT

It grows dark. The fire catches us. There is no place to cover. With hands and spades we scoop holes for our heads in the crater. And so we lie pressed close to the ground, Albert and Bethke beside me. A shell lands not 20 yards from us. As the beast comes howling we open wide our mouths to save our eardrums, even so we are half deafened and our eyes filled with dirt and sand and dust. The stench of powder and sulphur, metal. Somebody has stopped one for along with a smoking shell-fragment there lands on my face to Bethke's head a severed hand.

Heel bounds into our shell hole in the flashes of the explosions his face shows white as chalk with fury. Brand! he gasps, hits! Clean gone.

It crashes down once more, it pelts, roars, rains down mud and steel, the air thunders, the earth groans, the curtain of fire lifts again, sides back at the same instant men are seared black out of the earth by bombs in their hands watching, ready. "Slowly back!" shouts Heel.

The attack lies on our left front. There is a fight for a machine-gun post, it is a shell hole. The machine gun is barking. The flashes of hand grenades leap convulsively. Suddenly the gun is silent. A stoppage. Immediately the post is outflanked. A couple of minutes and it must be taken. Heel sees it. He goes over the parapet. "Forward!" Ammunition is tossed up and we go up after it. Soon Willy, Bethke and Heel are lying within throwing distance and throw. Heel jumps up again, he is stark mad at such moments, a perfect fiend. But it succeeds, the fellows in the shell hole take new heart, the machine gun comes again into action. Contact is made and together we make a dash for the concrete pill box behind us. It has all happened so quickly that the Tommies have not even realized that the post has been evacuated. Flashes continue to burst in the abandoned crater.

RESCUE COMRADE

It grows quieter. I am anxious about Ludwig. But he is there. Then Bethke crawls in. Wessling.

"What's Wessling doing?"

"Where's Wessling?" The cry goes up suddenly above the din, rumble of the long-range guns. Wessling. Wessling.

Heel appears. "What is it?"

Wessling a missing.

Tjaden had been beside him when the word came to retire, after that he had not seen him again. "Where?" asks Kosole. Tjaden points. Kosole looks at Bethke. Bethke at Kosole. Each knows that this is perhaps our last night. They do not need to talk. Right for me, says Bethke. Come on, grins Kosole, he'll be pleased close to the ground. Albert and Bethke beside me. A shell lands not 20 yards from us. As the beast comes howling we open wide our mouths to save our eardrums, even so we are half deafened and our eyes filled with dirt and sand and dust. The stench of powder and sulphur. It rains

Public Spend When Things Have Appeal

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

"On the contrary it is just another interesting bit of evidence that the public is quick to buy when presented with outstanding values. One feature of this showing that gives us particular satisfaction is that while our sales have been mounting our dealers have conducted their business along sound lines. This record has not been made at the expense of dealer profits.

"While our dealers were far surpassing last year's record they were at the same time improving their own financial and profit positions. As a result they are in even better shape today to take care of our owners than they were a year ago. So we are looking forward with confidence to further achievements from Pontiac for the remainder of the year.

Price of Export Copper Reduced

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The export price of copper was reduced a quarter of a cent a pound to 7.75 cents, C. I. F. European base ports, placing the metal on a parity with a domestic price of 12 cents, delivered.

The reduction follows a period of extreme quiet in copper buying operations, during which the domestic price of the metal has held at 12 cents a pound, with limited amounts of copper available at the lower figure.

Slump in Demand Affects Tin Plate Earnings

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

SHARP CURTAILMENT IN THE DEMAND for tin plate was responsible for the discontinuance of extra dividend payments of 50 cents quarterly by the McKeesport Tin Plate Company. No change has been made in the regular dividend rate of $4 annually.

Production of tin plate was at a high rate during the first half of the present year. Both volume and earnings were maintained at levels close to those of the record year of 1930. Net profit for the first six months of 1931 was $1,270,722, equivalent to $4.23 a share on 300,000 shares of capital stock. This compared with $1,513,850 or $5.04 a share in the corresponding period of the previous year.

Until recently the tin plate producers constituted the one branch of the steel industry which had not been affected by the general depression. The demand for tin plate normally is governed by the sizes of the crops of fruits and vegetables available for canning rather than by outside business conditions. It was not until two months ago that the canning industry and the tin plate makers had to take other factors into consideration.

Credit Not Ample

WITH THE EXCEPTION of the pea crop, the volume of foods available for canning this summer was practically equal to last year. The reduction in this crop, along with a decline in demand for general line cans for packing products other than foods, would not have seriously reduced demand for tin plate.

The slump in canning activities this year has been due almost entirely to the inability of the packers to finance their operations. In past years banking accommodations were extended with the stocks of canned goods as security. The cautious attitude of the bankers this year is responsible for reductions of about 30 per cent in the volume of the corn and tomato packs.

This has been reflected in a drop in tin plate production from about 75 per cent of capacity two months ago to less than 50 per cent at present. Tin plate has not been subject to price shading as have other types of steel.

Regular Dividends Safe

WHILE EARNINGS OF the McKeesport Tin Plate Company in the latter half of the year will be reduced, there is no apprehension about the future of the regular dividend rate of $4 annually. Earnings for the first half alone covered this by a substantial margin.

The company is in an exceptional position. It has no funded debt or preferred stock. At the close of 1930 current assets of $4,988,726 were five times current liabilities. Cash of $1,924,502 alone was more than twice current liabilities of $985,029.

In the full year of 1930 net profit was $2,503,897, or $8.35 a share, compared with $2,402,202, or $8.01 a share in 1929, and with $1,587,919, or $5.29 a share in 1928.

Operations are concentrated at a single point near McKeesport, where the company has one of the largest plants in the world devoted exclusively to the production of tin plate.

PRAIRIE FILES NEW RATES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The Prairie Pipe Line Company has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to establish a rate of 15 cents per barrel on crude petroleum from points in Oklahoma and Texas to Coffeyville, Kan., and a rate of 30¾ cents per barrel to Kansas City, Kan.

The new rates will be effective September 15 and are prompted by the martial law which has been invoked to control the prolific oil producing fields of Oklahoma and Texas. The pipe line company told the commission that due to this situation it is impossible for refineries at these two points to obtain their usual supply of oil, which threatens the curtailment of refining operations and unemployment of men at these points.

More Copper Mined By Roan Antelope

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Copper production by Roan Antelope Copper Mines, Ltd., during August amounted to 5,544,988 pounds, compared with 4,163,255 pounds in July and 2,490,000 pounds in June, the first month that the mill was in operation. Only one unit of the Roan Antelope Mill in South Africa was in operation until June 25, when the second unit started. One month later the third unit went into operation. There are five units in the mill. It is planned to have all of them in operation by the end of the year.

British Foreign Trade Shows Drop

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Preliminary British foreign trade figures for August show imports of £65,261,000, compared with £70,145,000 in July and £73,905,000 in August, 1930. Exports were £29,137,000, against £34,251,000 and £42,776,000, respectively. Re-exports totaled £3,850,000, compared with £4,936,000 and £6,342,000, respectively.

Ochiltree Electric Holds Sales Meeting

A sales boosting meeting of 500 dealers and their salesmen representing the Ochiltree Electric Company was held today in the Y. M. H. A. Building, to be followed by a dinner at 6 p. m. in the ballroom of the Hotel Schenley. Plans were made for a selling campaign, in connection with a nation-wide drive in the interest of General Electric refrigerators, to begin September 14 and continue until November 21.

Collin Admits That He Loves His Supposed Cousin

CHAPTER XXV

There was a silence. He said, sharply,

"Evelyn! Evelyn! Why," he said, "you're crying!"

"No. That is," explained Fanchon, shakily, "I'm trying very hard not to. Tears," she went on, trying to smile a little, "may be appropriate to Juliet, but they'll be noticed."

That made him laugh. Fanchon, relieved at his prompt withdrawal, was brushing her own tears away. "Please, please, you do care for me. Oh, tell me, Evelyn. Let me take that much wonderful comfort away with me."

"Yes," she told him, simply. "I do care, Collin."

After a while he had to go. He had to leave Fanchon, to lose Evelyn. He had a few precious hours.

He took her in his arms. She kissed him, fainting, forgetful, warm. He held her close. He kissed her, a long, passionate kiss.

"I love you, Evelyn. I love you. I love you."

After a while he said, "I have to go."

She clung to him. "Not yet. Not yet. Stay with me through this night. Stay with me, beloved. Let me have you for my own, for a little while. Collin, I will remember you with pride and gratitude in just a few short hours."

LEAVES WITH TONY

"No," she whispered. "Don't think of that. Please. It would break your mother's heart. She is terrible, appalled to lose you, as much as I have heard her speak of it."

She was aware that he had turned with her own regret at one time. His family resented Jean's marriage, that Evelyn might not be taken ever to see Fanchon.

"No," said Fanchon.

He said that he must go, holding them close.

"I'll see you soon. And I'm going to talk to mother tonight."

The cat grew up at the Van Suydam's. They separated then, but in the great house to which they now went and came to their duties, Mrs. Carstairs was there waiting, and that other Romeo who drew Fanchon as he danced with her while Collin, coming up a little too late to claim her, was forced to content himself with the society of the Van Suydam girls.

"You must come straight here," said Jean to Fanchon.

"No," she said, smiling. "Establish the pressure slowly. We drive a little in the fresh air to relieve it."

He looked at her searchingly, but her small, beautiful face was perfectly guileless. Good

Synopsis

Lovely Fanchon Meredith is wanted by the San Francisco police in connection with a murder committed by her sweetheart, "Tony." Fanchon did not know he was a gunman. She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith." Aboard is Evelyn Howard, whom Fanchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs whom she never saw. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the past, she goes to the Carstairs home as "Evelyn." A strong bond of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece." Collin Carstairs, the son, is at first antagonistic because of his "cousin's" Hawaiian escapades and her self-righteous attitude when his mother offered aid, but Fanchon's sincerity overcomes his objections. They fall in love. After a happy summer at Southampton, Fanchon makes her debut in New York. Collin, though realizing their relationship is a barrier, cannot resist professing his love. Fanchon cannot acknowledge hers without revealing her identity. A few days later a threatening note comes from Tony. She visits him and repulses his advances. Tony informs Fanchon that Evelyn is alive, but has lost her memory. He threatens to expose Fanchon unless she introduces him to Mrs. Carstairs as "Cesare Gilli." Two days later Tony calls at the Carstairs home. Fanchon introduces him as an old friend. He has a plan to steal Mrs. Carstairs' jewels with Fanchon's aid. Collin asks Fanchon why she acts so strangely in Collin's presence, but she gives him a misleading answer.

Now Go On

Shortly before the supper hour she found her mother and made her troubled excuses. Mrs. Van Suydam murmured sympathy and watched her go from the room with a tall figure in the doorway and how of Romeo. She said to herself, I wonder.

Collin, having changed for supper, came with his cousin's card for her and could not find her. He inquired his mother's whereabouts.

Where Evelyn is concerned he grows astonishingly—

I have no idea. I thought I saw her some time ago leave the room with Tony Gilli," the aforesaid.

COLLIN ANGERED

Damn that Gilli," was Collin's unpleasant exclamation, and damn his choice of a costume.

He went restlessly about the room in which his mother together with some of her friends were playing bridge, back into the ballroom into the conservatory, and looked up the broad stairs which were curved with whispering couples. Finally encountering his hostess he said, as she exclaimed at seeing him—

Somebody come back—is she—

I'm looking for Evelyn. I haven't seen—

Evelyn. But he went home some time ago with a terrific headache. I thought she told you. She said [illegible] me that she thought it advisable she was going straight to bed and would be looked after by her maid. Mrs. Van Suydam said, in some astonishment.

Collin thanked her and went back to his mother and told her.

I'll go along now," he said.

Don't," said Jessie, in the middle of the rubber. "We'll both be able to get away shortly. And you'll only upset her if she is ill and has gone to bed. Wait until I finish this hand," she ordered.

ADVISED TO STAY

When she had done so she drew him aside. The lovely face under the soft white hair crowned with the green shining of the emeralds was very troubled.

You didn't come straight here," she said. Collin, did you say anything to upset her on the way?"

He nodded, meeting her distressed gaze frankly.

Perhaps I did. I was going to tell you tonight—

Then," advised Jessie, "don't follow her. Let her alone for a time. We'll go home together after supper."

In the meantime Fanchon and Tony had arrived at the penthouse. He went upstairs with her. Jameson let them in and Tony strode past him into the living room. Jameson was old and drowsy from waiting up. The figure was very like Collin and the costume exactly alike. He was not to be blamed for thinking it was Collin.

Fanchon took off her ermine wrap and threw it over her arm.

You can go to bed, Jameson," she said. I'll let Mrs. Carstairs in."

Jameson thanked her and vanished. She went into the living room to join Tony.

All set?" asked Tony. She nodded without speaking. Tony, without another word, opened the door softly to the penthouse terrace and stepped out on it alone. The door closed.

DAILY SHORT STORY

'Arab' Simpson

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Missing Man Is Found on Island by Friend

"Tut tut, Joe," I murmured as I came aboard my friend's yacht, "the pest is still with you."

Joe Anders followed my glance in the direction of Wallo Simpson who, in dazzling yachting costume, was leaning over the rail, smoking a cigar.

"Oh, he's with us, but not exactly in the guise of a pest," Joe answered.

I patted Joe's arm. Always the same generous-hearted forgiving old Joe," I murmured.

I haven't been home in five years until this summer. Naturally, as soon as my [illegible] affairs were concluded, I drifted down on the island to meet my old acquaintances and visit with some relatives. Joe Anders, always a lover of yachting, had prospered mightily during my absence, and had graduated from being skipper of a little sailboat to owner of a handsome yacht.

In the old days we had enjoyed the yachting hospitality of Hal Burnam or Jack Landers or a few others of our club who could and did afford yachts.

How does it seem, you freshwater landlubber, to get on the briny?" Joe asked me.

I had been working in the high western hills as a mining engineer, and the largest craft I had seen in half a decade had been a small flat-bottomed river punt.

It seems mighty good, Joe," I confessed.

Simpson recognized me then and strolled over. I sighed, believing that I was in for a half-hour of inane chatter, ancient gags and, after that, a fortnight of Simpson's disgusting drunken attempts to be the witty playboy of the party.

TALK OF OLD TIMES

Hello there, Jack." Simpson greeted me.

We shook hands.

How's everything out in the Black Hills?"

Can't complain," I said, warily watching for him to break out with some of his ancient bits of horseplay foolery.

But Simpson surprised me. Instead of starting in to be the yachting party's Wise Guy, Smart Aleck and prize drunkard, he began talking about mining and it was plain that he knew what he was talking about.

That evening we were to pick up more guests at Newport. Joe and myself sat far aft. Joe had a fine old navigator to take the burden off his shoulders and talked over old times. We had been mighty close pals in the old days and had married girls who had always been close pals. My wife and Joe's wife were at that moment down below trying to catch up five years' lost conversation.

Simpson strolled over to where I sat with Joe and a steward came along with a tray and drinks at that moment.

We helped ourselves. Joe turned to Simpson then who did not seem to notice the steward or the tray of drinks.

What will it be, Arab," Joe asked Simpson.

Simpson smiled. I thought it was rather a pained sort of smile.

SIMPSON DEPARTS

The same as always, Joe, thank you," he said.

The steward opened a bottle of mineral water and poured it over ice in a tall glass. He added nothing else. I had expected to see about four fingers of potent liquor go into the mineral water, but nothing of the sort happened.

Simpson chatted a few moments, sipping the plain mineral water. Evidently he sensed that Joe and myself wanted to talk over old times, for he sauntered away after a while.

As soon as he was out of earshot I turned to Joe in amazement.

Simpson must be terribly sick," I said. I've known him almost 20 years and this is the first time I ever saw him pass up a drink."

I expected you'd notice that, Jack," Joe chuckled. He's off the stuff."

I thought at the time Nell Walling turned him down so flat just before I went West that he'd drink himself to death and be pouring back into the bottle within a year."

Joe shook his head.

I suppose Nell is married now. She was certainly a pretty girl and as sensible and nice as she was pretty. I hope she married well."

Yes. Nell did quite well and is decidedly happy. She's coming aboard at Newport."

Good! I shall be glad to see her, and so will Myrtle. Myrtle is my wife. But say, what the Dickens could have come over Simpson to put him on the wagon? Must have been something organic and his doctor threw a scare into him."

Joe puffed thoughtfully at his cigar. No," he said, not exactly that. Arab turned into a mighty good old scout."

Arab! That reminds me," I recalled him. Arab, when you offered him the drink, where did he get that moniker?"

It's quite a story, Jack."

Let's have it."

It happened the year after you forsook us and went West to show those boys how to dig holes in the ground. Simpson had remained just the same terrible pest, booze-hound and generally disliked party."

Did he pester Nell after she turned him down?"

No, he seemed to have sense enough to know that she meant it, and he seemed to agree with her that he was no good at anything except as an aid to bootleggers. I hadn't got my yacht then, we were all out with Spence Catlin. He

Simpson was unusually obnoxious that time. The more he drank the more he tried to be the world's champion nuisance. He didn't bother Nell much. We felt sorry for her because we could see that she was sorry for him. Nell had used her head, but we suspected that she still had a tender spot for him.

You know, Jack, that even out-and-out insults never bothered Simpson; they rolled off his back like water off an oil-skin slicker.

Probably half a dozen of us took turns arguing with him and insulting him. Finally Simpson sat somewhat aloof, in a wicker chair, staring into space. He seemed to be in a daze, his eyes were popped and he was perspiring fluently, believe me. We had to put in at Block Island before cutting across to Newport. Simpson followed the few of us who went ashore, but didn't mingle with us. When we came back we couldn't find him.

STILL MISSING

Let the fool stay and sober up," Spence said.

Back aboard the yacht, however, one of the crew told Spence that Simpson had taken a small rathoat and sailed away in it. It was almost dark then. We couldn't make him out. There were a number of small rathoats still out.

At Newport we picked up the others of the party and the next day came back to Block Island to leave some of the people. We expected to find Simpson there, but to our amazement and worry we learned that he had not shown up. He was still missing, along with the rathoat he had borrowed without asking.

We can't sit by and do nothing, Spence," I said. I'll get a man and a launch and go scouting around. Don't tell the guests, just go along as though nothing had happened."

Well, at least he got some friendly attention for once," I commented.

The man I hired the launch from was sea and weather wise. I told him the truth about Simpson. He said that if Simpson simply collapsed in the boat and left the sails loose, the tide would have taken him at that hour, just safely past Montauk Point. By that time this character declares, the tide would turn and drift him down on some spot on the south side of the island. We made good time, the little launch had speed all right, and we rounded Montauk Point and started west along the south shore, keeping well in and watching the shore with powerful glasses. Finally my man said he recognized the missing rathoat. We went in. Sure enough, there it was, high and dry, the night tide had been higher than the next day's tide and didn't take it off. Then I began to search for Simpson. The rathoat was in an inlet and no buildings were in sight. I was startled to see the tops of palm trees over back of a sand dune. I couldn't understand it. Palms like those never grew north of Panama.

I went over the dune. Just over the edge I found Simpson. He sat there holding his head in his hands, staring and muttering. He was unshaven, his clothes torn, and he looked like the very devil and all.

'Sa awful," I heard him mutter. 'sawful, how'n hell did I get to Arabia."

I looked ahead. There were two encampments of Arab tents, a large oasis with a well, probably 40 Arabs on horses dashing about, five camels being ridden and one building that might have been Moorish, Algerian or Arabian. I saw other things then and nudged Simpson. He stared at me.

Good ol' Joe," came clear to Arabia to rescue me. how'd you find me? How did I get here?" he asked.

We heard a year ago," I told him solemnly, of an American wandering about over here.

A year ago?" he yelled.

Sure. Bedouins on the shore captured you."

He believed it. He began to ask questions.

I've been in a sort of coma, imagine me going a whole year without a drink, what's happened at home?"

MARRIED NELL

I told him Nell was married and had a little son. I handed him a whole string of fake stuff. Suddenly he leaped up and cried: You dam liar—this isn't Arabia, see that movie camera and that director, they're making a desert picture out here, those camels are hired and the trees are phoney!"

Well," Joe chuckled, I got him back. Everyone has called him Arab Simpson ever since. He hasn't taken a drink since then." Joe paused and arose. Here we are at Newport."

The party came aboard. Simpson and Nell embraced and kissed.

What the devil?" I asked Joe.

Oh, I didn't mention who it was Nell married. Joe said. She married Simpson after he had gone straight for an other year.

Good for Arab Simpson," I cried.

Sure it was good for him," Joe answered.

Vote for Col. McGovern

The Taxpayers Need a Man of His Type as County Commissioner. Mansfield Has a Good Record.

The campaign for the Republican nominations for County Commissioner is unusual in that although two places are to be filled no two candidates are in open alliance. It is perhaps just as well that this should be so, since it makes it necessary for the voters to consider each man's individual qualifications.

The Sun Telegraph advocates the election of Col. Charles C. McGovern, the minority commissioner. McGovern is the stormy petrel of Allegheny County politics. He has made the commissioners' meetings very lively affairs by his trenchant criticism of the majority commissioners' policies and practices. He may have gone too far at times, but there is no doubt that he has saved the taxpayers a great deal of money.

Col. McGovern has been called an obstructionist, and the title is probably deserved; but he has been an honest and courageous obstructionist, whose tactics of obstruction were employed in blocking what he believed to be—and often really were—plans to plunder and cheat the people.

The citizens owe him something, for example, for the bulldog tenacity with which he guarded the ballot boxes at the courthouse, and thus prevented fraud, in the bitterly contested election of last year.

The affairs of the county will be safer for having a watchdog like him in the commissioners' office.

McGovern has the experience, ability and judgment to do good, constructive work with a sympathetic colleague, as well as to obstruct extravagance and crookedness.

Of the other candidates, Senator William D. Mansfield seems to offer the greatest hope of adequate administration of the county's affairs.

Mansfield has aroused suspicion by his failure to discuss in a direct, straightforward manner the things that are of importance and interest to the people in the County Commissioners' contest. In pussyfooting he has seemed to put what he regarded as expediency above principle, and has undoubtedly alienated by this policy many who would gladly have supported him if he had spoken out fearlessly.

But while there has been nothing in his course as a candidate to commend his candidacy the citizens cannot afford to forget or overlook his long and honorable record of service in the State Senate. Mansfield has been independent in thought and action, and has usually been on the right side of questions involving the people's welfare.

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, a candidate for a third term in the office, has held public office in Allegheny County almost continuously for 35 years. He is an organization politician of the old school; but he is a builder, too, and his constructive achievements cannot honestly be belittled.

The people appreciate the roads and bridges and buildings that they have gained under his leadership. It is true that money has been wasted in the construction of the county airport and that the building of the Allegheny River boulevard was bungled by the failure to provide properly for passing the water works at Nadine. But these incidents are outweighed by Armstrong's many other accomplishments with which no fault can be found.

Nevertheless, with due recognition of the things that may be adduced in Armstrong's favor, the fact must be faced that he represents an old order that has no proper place in the modern scheme.

Armstrong stands, like Mayor Kline, for the iniquitous and inefficient "spoils system" under which public employes are given their positions not for their ability but as a reward for political services, and are required not to serve exclusively the taxpayers who pay their salaries but also the political bosses to whom they owe their jobs.

Armstrong cracks his whip over the payroll and tells the employes to go out and round up votes for him. He will not even give a laborer a job unless he is vouched for by one of the Armstrong organization lieutenants.

Probably the worst thing in Armstrong's record is the voting machine fiasco. Allegheny County has suffered grievously from election frauds and belated reporting of the election returns, and the people demanded by a large vote the installation of voting machines to stop cheating and expedite the returns.

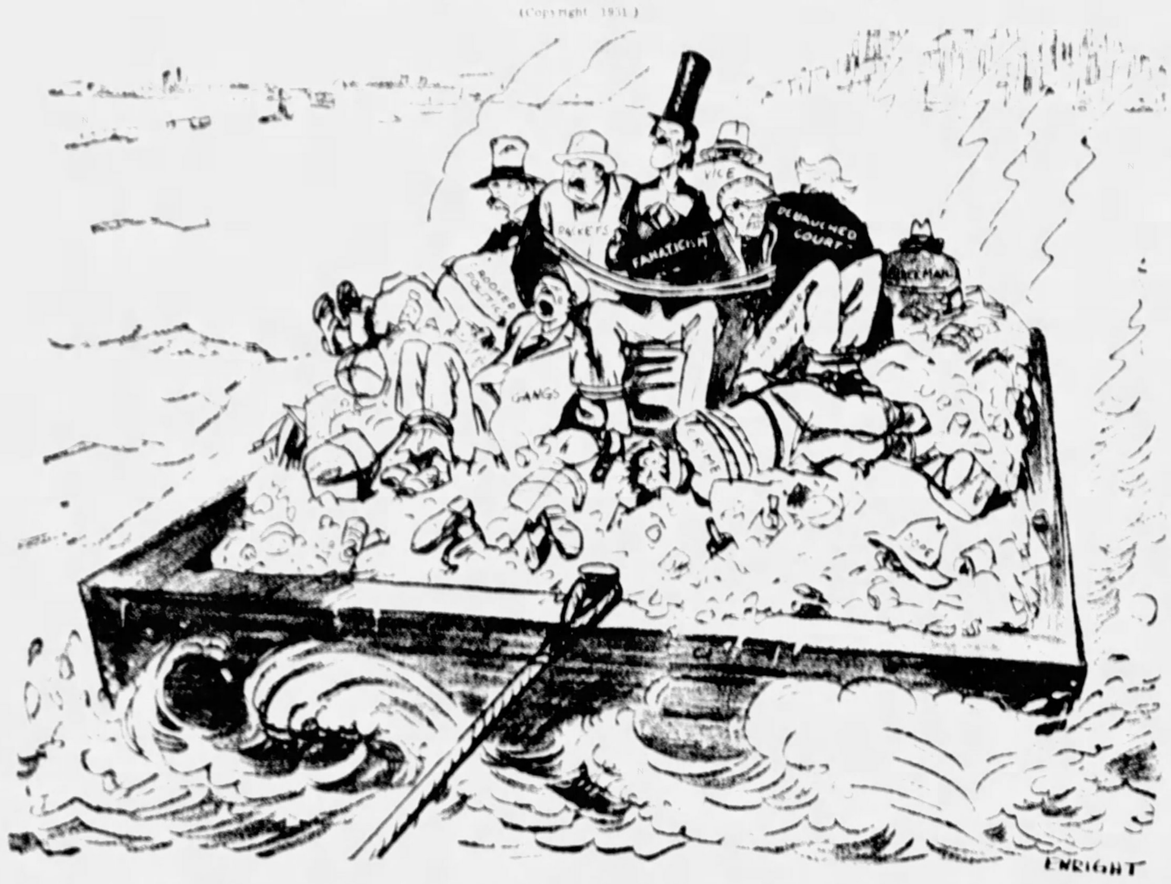
Armstrong, instead of setting about the business of getting them as a good businessman should, listened to lobbyists for an untried voting machine, with the result that comparatively few of the devices will be in use next Tuesday, and wholesale cheating on paper ballots is again in prospect.

Furthermore, if the original contract for the voting machines had not been invalidated through a taxpayer's suit the people of Allegheny County would have had to pay many thousands of dollars more for them than will now be necessary.

We repeat that Armstrong has served the people well in many things and deserves credit for it. But he has been in office long enough, and, as a representative of the political evils from which the people are struggling to free themselves, he should be retired to private life.

There is one other formidable contender in the County Commissioners' contest — State Senator James J. Coyne. There is nothing in his life or record to justify his being considered for this high office.

In Their Proper Setting



If all the evil brood spawned by Prohibition could be loaded upon a garbage scow, towed far, far to sea and dumped overboard, it would solve one of the nation's great problems.

But the country never will accomplish such a wholesale cleaning out of its vice dens and crime breeding sore spots until abominable Prohibition is done away with.

When the sane, sober majority of the American people, real believers in TRUE TEMPERANCE, rise in their wrath and forces the law makers at Washington to revise the Dry laws, then will there be hope for the eventual eradication of our present day evils, AND NOT BEFORE.

Fallacy of Prohibition

By Brand Whitlock

(From the "Little Green Shutter," by Brand Whitlock, published by D. Appleton & Co.)

(Copyright, 1931, by Brand Whitlock.)

A GREAT deal of the difficulty in establishing national prohibition arises from the fact that the personal habits of the people are not uniform throughout the nation.

The trouble arose when earnest teetotalers, who could see no difference between a hill billie whooping it up on apple jack and a gentleman having a bottle of Chateau Margaux to his dinner, tried to impose their habits and standards of conduct on the entire population of the land.

But the reformers are possessed by their theory, and they are bound to stick to it through thick and thin. This process of trying to force the explosive facts of life into the narrow limits of a theory is responsible for much of the trouble in a world that already has more trouble than it knows how to deal with. So much time and energy are spent in the hopeless task of trying to enforce statutes based on these impossible theories that none is left to devote to the real criminals, and the lack of respect for these statutes is contagious and breeds disrespect for the real laws. Gresham's law works here as elsewhere; bad money drives out the good, and foolish legislation weakens that which is wise and salutary.

WHAT we need is to have our legislation entrusted for a session or two to codifiers. If only we could have a commission composed, say, of Moses and Lycurgus and Justinian, to go over our two million "laws" and mark those that are not in accord with the customs of the people, and if our legislative bodies would repeal the statutes so marked, relegating some of them to the shades of a forgotten past, and placing others on file to await the dawn of an Utopian future, what a blessing it would be, and what peace would descend upon the land! The Constitution would be restored to its rightful place as the safeguard of our insane preoccupation with the personal habits of other people, to devote our thought and energies to questions of real importance.

And then there is the law of the ironic contrariety of things which is always and everywhere at work. Nothing, by any possible chance, ever turns out exactly as one thought it would; the most extraordinary things happen, things that one never dreamt of. It is easier to set great forces in motion than to foresee all their consequences. The original impulse may have been given with the best intention in the world, but no human imagination can take into account the myriad unforeseen results.

AND so with the reformers; they forget, if they ever knew, that the experience of all history is against violent political experiments and hurried solutions of social problems.

They set in motion a train of deplorable consequences which they never imagined when they began, and which they refuse to recognize when they have done. The fact that the theory on which they had based their experiment has failed does not affect them in the least.

Thus, for the evils growing out of the abuse of alcoholic stimulants, they substitute the evils of prohibition. It was not, of course, their intention to do this. They saw the evil of the bottle, and decided to make a new world in which nobody could ever get a drink again. But all they succeeded in doing was to replace the saloon with the speakeasy, the saloon keeper with the bootlegger, and pure liquor with "hooch"—lovely word! That is, they haven't accomplished as much good as the state laws accomplished in the old days when the question was left to the police powers of the separate states, where it belongs; and it has brought far more evils in its train than were known under the old regime.

THOSE regions that are pointed out as dry under national prohibition were dry under state prohibition or local option laws; whilst the regions that were wet under the old regime are not only wet still, but are wetter than ever.

Thomas Jefferson thought that the best way to deal with the evils of drink (much worse in his day than in ours) was to encourage the use of the weaker forms of alcoholic stimulants; but these are about the only kind that prohibition prohibits; the use of beverages containing alcohol in its most highly concentrated form is encouraged because it is the more easily transported, and prompter in its results. Swigging cocktails before meals, and a pull at the hip-pocket flask at other times; such are the refining results of prohibition.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Companionship

Nobody seems to understand why a girl wants to marry in these days of fine jobs, fat feminine salaries and complete feminine freedom.

* * *

Everybody seems to think that a spinster is unbalanced, when she exchanges a big pay envelope, with union hours, imported hats and all holidays off, for a life-job catering to a man's appetite, moods and grouches, saving his pennies, and waiting for him to come home, evenings.

* * *

And yet—miracle of miracles!—girls go right on WANTING to marry!

Why? Oh, there's a sound, authentic reason!

Thus, the average girl may work twice as hard over a gas-range, after marriage, as she worked over a mahogany desk, before marriage.

But, how much more fun and joy and excitement there is in work—any kind of work!—when you're doing it FOR somebody, than when you're doing it just for a soul-less pay-envelope!

True, she may have to wear bargain-counter hats, instead of the smart imports of her halcyon days of "freedom." But, what thrill is there in an "import"—unless you're wearing it for Somebody, unless there's Somebody to feel proud of you in it?

* * *

True, her little kitchenette apartment may not be as comfortable and handsome as the mahogany-finished office she worked in; and the little home dinner may not include alligator pear salad and fancy ices, like those the boss used to buy her, in the old days.

* * *

But, there's somebody there, to SHARE the apartment, and appreciate the dinner—and it's their own little place, and their own little table! And somehow, it all has a meaning and a beauty and a significance that no fat pay-envelope, no jazz-palace and no synthetic love can have.

* * *

And the meaning is COMPANIONSHIP!

Do you really think that any normal girl marries just "to be supported"—just for a "meal-ticket" in these days of easy jobs and high wages?

Do you really think she marries for kisses in these days of petting parties? Or, in order to get Mrs. on her name in these days of the waning popularity of wedding rings?

* * *

Oh, wake up! The modern woman marries for somebody to SHARE things with, for somebody to DO things for, for somebody to LIVE for and work beside and play with. She marries for a partner!

* * *

And, when you have peeled off all the camouflage and the pretense and the mid-Victorian nonsense, and the modern hard-boiled philosophy, there is just one definite reason for living—and that is for the love of a man or the love of a woman!

* * *

And the reason why a girl wants to marry more than a man does, is because she is WISE, and knows what life is for, while he is a "goop," and doesn't know what it's all about.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—I know of no place so packed with that quality scribblers call "human interest" as the stage of a theater during rehearsal. Especially is this true of a musical production. Just now competition for a job is so keen rehearsals take on a sort of frenzy.

Smart producers pit performers against each other, not only at rehearsals, but for the first few weeks of the run. The fittest survive and the rest receive their notice. Sitting in at a rehearsal the other night revealed several phases of the theater most of us do not know.

For instance, it is tradition that in every sister act the most talented of the pair works on the right side. And in few sister acts is there an actual relationship, so a great difficulty is professional jealousy. Notable exceptions are the Fairbanks and Dodge twins.

Twins are often capable in singing and dancing acts, but rarely in dramatic roles. Musical show producers, as a rule, have their greatest trouble with so-called featured players. They will fight for every inch of the spotlight. The star, of course, demands and gets top honors.

The most tractable and least temperamental are juveniles—the pretty marceled boys, who sing syrupy songs to beautiful maids in the moonlight. It might be imagined such lady-killers would be hard to handle. But most of them are happily married and thoroughly domesticated.

Comedians, as a class, are the most irresponsible but they hold a show together in those taut moments on opening nights when things threaten to go completely haywire. A notable example was Bert Wheeler's "It's the mice!" when an entire set of scenery collapsed before the audience.

Every musical show has at least one effeminate man in the chorus. This is regarded as an omen of good luck. Earl Carroll once told me he was convinced his lavish extravaganza "Floretta," failed because he had neglected to engage a sissy for the chorus.

Arnold Bennett, to my notion, used excellent taste in autographing a book to his friend, Somerset Maugham. On a fly leaf he simply inscribed his name and date. He regarded the giving a sentimental gesture and saw no need of elaborating this sentiment.

* * *

Now and then authors autograph books flippantly. In my collection are such trumpeted pleasantries as: "A fresh sheaf of shaving papers." "In lieu of a sleeping powder." "Boy, this is swell swill." and "Here's a hunk of literature."

* * *

Ladies, I am told, frequently go to the Capitol Theater just to admire the fine shoulders and extraordinary grace of the Russian orchestra conductor, Yasha Bunchunk. His figure is hailed as the living replica of a Greek god. Bunchunk was a cellist, obscure in a symphony orchestra, when Maj. Bowes selected him to wield the baton.

* * *

New York had two "love nest shootings" in a single week. The pistol users were members of that crepe de chine caravan who were told abruptly the boom days were over. Rent for hide-away apartments was no longer possible. Two buildings so tenanted in the 70's are reported almost completely deserted.

The sidewalk in front of the Friars offered a Main street touch this summer. Members tilted against the building in the late evening in shirt sleeved indolence and spun yarns. The Friars, Lambs and Players, warrens for actors, carry on despite pronounced financial distress. Other clubs, with far wealthier membership, have spluttered out and passed into darkness.

And a block in East Fiftieth, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, features a sidewalk cafe ultra Parisian, to boxed trees thickened into full folio and brightly checkered tablecloths. There were few diners the night I passed. Jacques Bustanoby once gave the idea a twirl on upper Broadway, but it did not jell either.

* * *

Sitting and eating on sidewalks this summer may be good practice. Many seem to think we will be sleeping outdoors this winter. Select your gutter early.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There is a song in me.
Have you ever been haunted by a song—
A secret song
Which passes ever and ever
Through your mind, through your heart,
No matter what is happening to you outside?
Some homely, gay little tune—
Some wistful, sweet melody—
Which warms you and comforts you.
Though the day may be dark
And your burden heavy—
Have you ever been haunted
By a song like that?
There is a song in me.
There is a song in me like that.
It goes on and on in me—
It has always gone on and on in me,
In spite of everything that has happened,
And many things have happened
For I have come a long way
And have missed very little on the road.
Many things have happened—
Vicious things, tragic things,
Monotonous things which chafed
More cruelly than grief.
I have been poor and hungry—
I have been foolish and ashamed—
I have lost everything I loved—
If any person has a right
To say that life isn't worth living
Then I'm that person.
BUT THERE IS A SONG IN ME—
There is a song in me
That never has stopped.
It did not stop
When I was most desperate,
Or most a failure,
Or even when the grave
Took all I had—
Always that song went on in me
Something like this—
"This will pass.
"This is not all.
"This is only one small happening.
"I shall survive this happening.
"I shall survive many happenings.
"Nothing shall stop me.
"I shall go on and on forever.
"No matter how much trouble
"Falls upon me—
"I shall go on.
"And I shall grow stronger
"As I go on,
"And wiser.
"From each grief I will learn a lesson—
"By each loss I shall be freed—
"And nothing can ever take from me
"The true love and the true wisdom
"And the true strength
"Which I gather as I go.
"I shall go on—
"Even though life cripples me,
"Even though my body fails me
"Nothing can stop me—
"I SHALL GO ON!"
There is a song like that in me.
Often it has seemed to stop—
Beaten down by pain,
Shouted down by hate or fear,
But it has never stopped.
Nothing that can happen to me
Can stop it.
Even my own doubt can't stop it.
It goes singing on in me,
It goes singing on Forever.
You say to me—
"Do you believe in life after death?"
"If so, what is your argument
"For life after death?"
I say to you—
That is my argument—
That song that is in my heart
That song that is in every heart,
That song that says—
"I shall go on
"In spite of everything!"
That is my argument,
My final, unanswerable argument
For life after death.

JOSEPH D. HOOKER

By Archibald Henderson

To the man-in-the-street, who knows little of such things, science means something of which spectacular announcements are made, from time to time, in the newspapers. As it happens, the greater part of science is far from spectacular. It is patient, laborious study and research, in the study, the laboratory, the field. In the case of the botanist it often, and indeed in the great majority of cases, means the gathering of specimens, then cataloguing and description, with perhaps some generalizations. Work of this sort, full of interest, might be carried on for a lifetime, without any element of the spectacular. The greatest thrill would come from the discovery of varieties or species of plants hitherto unknown to science.

Joseph Dalton Hooker was a scientist of this kind. He was born at Halesworth, in Suffolk, England, on June 30, 1817. His father, Sir William Jackson Hooker, was famous as the director of the Royal Botanical Gardens at Kew from 1841 to 1865. Joseph took his degree in medicine at the University of Glasgow; but immediately after graduation he announced his determination to devote his life to botanical research. He secured a commission as a botanist to the Antarctic Expedition under Sir James Ross for the exploration of the coasts of the Antarctic continent. Hooker brought back with him in 1843 plant specimens to the number of 5,340, from a region supposed to be entirely barren and desolate. During the years from 1844 to 1860 he published the results of his findings in six quarto volumes.

In 1847 he performed a similar service of science, making a three-year's journey through the Himalaya Mountains. He made a large collection of specimens which he generously presented to the Calcutta Botanical Garden. Later he made a study of the flora of peninsula India, carried on researches in Morocco, and explored the chain of the Atlas Mountains for new plants. He also made botanical researches in America.

In 1855 he was appointed to the post of assistant director of the Kew Gardens, and in 1868 he succeeded his father as director. Under his directorship the Kew Gardens became the greatest of botanical institutions and exhibitions. In 1877 Hooker visited the United States and, in company with Asa Gray made an expedition to California. This same year he was knighted. At the age of 91 he was given the Order of Merit. He died at the age of 94, a famous and venerable prophet of science, on December 10, 1911.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

If you are offered a certain thing and want it, take it.

Don't refuse, expecting to be urged.

There are some folk who still consider it the height of politeness to hesitate and finally turn down offers hoping and expecting to be urged.

There is not much use wasting time with such folk.

They are not practical enough to see that they are wasting time.

They are so afraid to appear anxious.

But the business and the social world needs the one who is anxious.

If not anxious, at least dependable enough to say Yes or No and mean it.

There is nothing more aggravating than to ask a person to do something which is really an honor and then see them mincingly and self-consciously back water, exclaiming, "Oh, you must not do so much for me. I can't take it," all the time baiting the donor of favors for insistence.

Either refuse or accept an invitation without hesitation.

It is not lack of generosity and scant hospitality that directs a hostess, for instance, to ask but once if a guest wishes a certain thing.

And if you really don't want it, 'tis easy to refuse graciously.

The person who is uncertain as to what he wants or does not want is aggravating.
